Eisenhower Unavailable As Democrat Candidate

Decision to Shun Political Scene Unshaken by Any New Circumstances

By J. R. Wiggins
Post Reporter

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is not available for the Democratic presidential nomination.

His "definite and positive" decision to remove himself completely from the political scene still stands.

It was learned yesterday that neither the events at Philadelphia last week nor any other circumstance since January 22, when he first made his position clear, have altered his determination to refrain from seeking high political office. They have not provided the "obvious and over-riding reasons" for changing his mind to which he referred in his January statement.

Thinking Not Changed

His thinking has not been changed by the Republican nomination of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Gov. Earl Warren. It has not been influenced by the announced intention of several Southern delegations to put his name in nomination at the Democratic convention in Philadelphia on July 12.

Last April, members of the Gridiron Club of Washington lampooned General Eisenhower in a skit in which an actor impersonating him sang:

"You can offer me what you like,
"But I'll still be Professor Ike—
"Nomination, take it away—both of them."

This still is an accurate representation of the general's point of view. He is president of Columbia University and intends to stick to it.

Unmoved by Appeals

Visitors with pleas that the general change his mind continue to flock to him. They are listened to courteously and patiently. They have no influence on him. They do not move his rocklike resolution to shun high political office.

The general is paying no attention to efforts of Veterans for Eisenhower and members of the Americans for Democratic Action to gain for him the District of Columbia's 12-man delegation to the Democratic national convention.

He is not in touch with these efforts and has not had anything to say about the campaign that will end with the District of Columbia Democratic primary today. He is equally unconcerned and indifferent about the Virginia Democratic convention which next Friday picks 25 delegates.

Name May Be Entered

In spite of all Eisenhower has done to make his position clear, his name is likely to go before the Democratic convention in Philadelphia on July 12.

The first ballot may have quite a few votes for him bunched at the front end of the roll. Alabama, first State on the list is for him. Arizona, the second State, is

Stalin's 'Paternal' Concern With Army Food Cited

Moscow, June 27 (NYHT.).—Prime Minister Stalin maintains a paternal concern for the welfare of the soldiers and sailors of the Soviet Union, especially their diet, Gen. A. V. Khrulev, Deputy Minister of Armed Forces, said today.

General Khrulev cited Stalin's interest at a conference of cooks, dieticians and quartermasters of the Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev and Byelorussian military districts. He urged his listeners to display a "Stalin-like concern" about army food.

"The quotas of food supplies for the armed forces were worked out on the basis of personal directive from Comrade Stalin and confirmed by him," he said.

General Khrulev named the cook as the key to a supply of satisfactory food for troops.

Polls Open 2 to 8

Democratic Primary Due In D.C. Today

Today is "voting" day for Democrats in the voteless District.

They will have a chance to indicate a preference for the presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket, even though they will not be able to vote for him in the November election.

The District Democratic primary will be held from 2 to 8 p. m. at seven polling places throughout the city. The nominations for membership on the Democratic Central Committee and for delegates' posts to the national party convention are uncontested, but a fight is expected on the choice for the presidential nomination.

The local Democratic committee has indorsed President Harry S. Truman for renomination. His

Dewey Attends Services on Quaker Hill

GOP Presidential Nominee to Take Rest at Pawling

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Pawling, N. Y., June 27.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey attended morning service today in the dignified quiet of Christ Church on nearby Quaker Hill.

He was driven to the church from his Pawling home, where he is resting after the Philadelphia Republican convention which nominated him for President. He arrived with Mrs. Dewey and their sons, Thomas, jr., and John, about 11:30 a. m.

The Deweys sat in the fifth row. About 250 persons filled the church to hear the first sermon this year of their summer minister, the Rev. Dr. Ralph Conover Lankler, whose regular pulpit is in the First Presbyterian Church of Cortland, N. Y.

No Reference to Dewey

Dr. Lankler made no sermon reference to Governor Dewey or the new nomination. He based his sermon upon the teachings of St. Paul, using as his text a section of the first letter to the Corinthians, Chapter 15, verses 1-10. His sermon title was "The Meaning of Grace."

His closest reference to world affairs came in a prayer in which he asked: "Our Father, we pray Thy spirit may be with us and guide us. Enable us to relax our hold upon ourselves. Bring peace to our troubled and disturbed earth."

He prayed for guidance to our leaders to find the way to world cooperation and said "may our nation play a noble part in bringing wholeness to the world, feeding the hungry, and finding peace."

Among the hymns were "Holy, Holy, Holy," and the beautiful prayer written by John Greenleaf Whittier called "The Inner Life." The hymn books were given to the church by Governor and Mrs. Dewey.

Witness Baptism

Besides the sermon, the Deweys witnessed the baptism of 4-week-old Gregory Scott Jones, whose father is director of the local Starlight Theater. Governor Dewey is on the list of theater patrons. The child's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Starr West Jones.

After the service, outside the church little Gregory became the center of Mrs. Dewey's attention. She called her sons to see the baby. There was a demand for pictures. The Governor was standing there, but it fell to 12-year-old

Policeman Shot Down By Suspect

Capitol Officer Critically Wounded; Prisoner Admits Shooting, Police Say

A 66-year-old Capitol policeman was shot twice and critically wounded yesterday by a yoke-robbery suspect whom he had in custody for questioning.

The policeman, Pvt. Fred Crenshaw, was found about 3 a. m., sprawled, semiconscious, on the grounds at the west front of the Capitol Building. He had been shot twice—once in the chest and once in the spinal region.

Suspect Arrested

About 20 minutes after the shooting, Capitol police arrested a 22-year-old suspect at 3rd and D sts. nw., near the Botanical Gardens.

The suspect, identified as Cleveland Shrad, 321 Virginia ave. sw., was charged last night with assault with intent to kill.

Police said he at first had denied the shooting but later confessed. Police said he was arrested on the basis of the assailant's description.

Numerous Yoke-Robberies

The shots apparently had been fired from Crenshaw's own .38-caliber service revolver which lay behind him.

"I fired three times, he shot me twice," Crenshaw gasped to the policemen who found him, according to Capt. William Broderick, chief of the Capitol force. Five shots had been fired from Crenshaw's gun, Broderick said.

Events leading up to the shooting started at about 2:30 a. m. yesterday when Lieut. Bernard L. Flanagan, Sergt. Harley Hylton and Pvt. George Trehern of the Capitol Police were questioning loungers on the Capitol grounds.

The area had been the scene of numerous yoke robbery attempts in recent weeks and the officers were seeking suspects.

The three policemen had stopped two men on the west side of the Capitol when a third intervened and began arguing with them, Broderick said.

Man Had Been Drinking

Flanagan said the man "had been drinking and was acting very ornery."

As the argument grew hotter, Crenshaw appeared. He had been on duty guarding the House Office Building and had been relieved to get some fresh air

Flanagan said he turned the belligerent suspect over to Cren-

Heat Causes Six-Inch Bulge In Taft Bridge

Ninety-degree temperatures yesterday buckled the paving on Taft Bridge, leaving a 6-inch-high bulge clear across the roadway.

Traffic Division police manned the swollen spot for a time, guiding throngs of motorists over it cautiously. A District bridge inspector explained that the heat had caused two ends of concrete slabs beneath the pavement to raise, creating the ridge in the bridge, which carries Connecticut ave. over Rock Creek Park.

The inspector, who made a thorough check, said there was "no danger of collapse." The ridge must now be "dug out," he said, filled in and resurfaced. "Drive slow" signs, together with red lights, slowed motorists to a safe speed through the night.

Girl, 11, Slain In Rock Creek Park

Body Discovered With Throat Cut; Police Seek Man With Bloody Clothes

An 11-year-old District girl, sought by anxious parents and neighbors after failing to come home on time, was found dead in Rock Creek Park late yesterday, her throat brutally slashed.

The blood-spattered body of Carol Bardwell, 1635 Webster st. nw., was discovered at 7:30 p. m. sprawled under a fallen tree about 25 feet off a path leading from 17th st. and Colorado ave. nw., about six blocks from her home.

The child, a sixth grade student at Sacred Heart School, had been reported missing about an hour before.

Strollers Find Body

Her body was found by John Breen, 1419 Rhode Island ave. nw., and Miss Lucille Bergstrom, 111 14th st. ne., while strolling in the park.

They called Daniel W. Johnson, 4409 17th st. nw., one of a search party of 25 neighbors formed after an alarm was spread by the girl's father, William P. Bardwell, a Federal Trade Commission examiner.

"She was all covered with blood," Johnson said. "I couldn't stand to get within 15 feet of her."

The child was officially pronounced dead by a neighboring physician, Dr. Maurice Protas, 4807 Colorado ave. nw., at 8:20 p. m.

Park Police removed the body to the District Morgue.

Clews Are Lacking

Both Park Police and Metropolitan Police broadcast a lookout for "a man with bloody clothes." They had no other clews. No murder weapon was found.

According to Mrs. Mildred Shaner, daughter of Johnson, Carol was "a regular tomboy on a bike—large for her age, blonde and very pretty."

Police at the Tenth Precinct said the neighbors had made a number of complaints in recent weeks of a man molesting children in the vicinity.

An autopsy will be conducted tomorrow in District Morgue. Police said a preliminary examination showed that no attempt at rape had been made.

Neighbors said that Bardwell gave this account of the events leading up to the body's discovery:

At about 5 p. m. yesterday he gave the child permission to bicycle to tennis courts at 16th st. and Morrow dr. nw., upon her promise to return shortly.

Father Finds Bicycle

An hour and a half later, alarmed when she hadn't shown up, Bardwell walked out to look for her. After searching the wooded area near 17th st. and Colorado ave. nw., he stumbled upon the child's bicycle on a pathway only 25 feet from where the body was discovered later.

Bardwell carried the bicycle to the home of a friend, Peter E. Kekenas, 4725 Colorado ave. nw., where he phoned Park Police.

In the meantime, sympathetic neighbors voluntered to form searching parties and 25 of them set out in five cars.

California Plans To 'Wait and See' At Philadelphia

San Luis Obispo, Calif., June 27 (AP).—The California delegation to the Democratic National Convention decided today on a wait-and-see policy at Philadelphia.

All 62 members, including James Roosevelt, newly chosen national committeeman, signed statements they would prefer President Truman. But this is standard State party procedure and not a definite pledge, a spokesman explained.

"We're leaving California as a Truman delegation and will see what happens at Philadelphia, according to conditions at that time," said John F. Shelley, of San Francisco, the delegation chairman.

U.S. Sending 39 Cargo Planes To Fight Soviet Siege of Berlin; Ships Will Run Food Into City

Three Squadrons Start Taking Off Today at Request Of General Clay

By the United Press

The Air Force announced last night that about 39 big C-54 Skymaster planes will be flown to Germany starting today to help the Western Allies fight Russia's siege of Berlin.

The announcement said three squadrons from the Alaskan, Caribbean and Tactical Air Commands had been ordered to Germany at the "request" of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany.

The planes presumably will be used to bring food and other necessities into Berlin.

The planes will begin leaving their bases "within 24 hours" and are being sent for the express purpose of "increased air facilities to supply Berlin," the Air Force announcement said.

A fourth squadron of about 13 C-54 Skymasters has also been ordered from the Seventh Air Force base in Hawaii to the Westover (Mass.) Air Force Base on a "long-range training mission," the Air Force said.

It was understood these planes would also be available for a quick hop to Germany if Clay needs them.

The Air Force said the three squadrons will fly "singly or otherwise as they become operationally ready for the mission."

The Air Force said the three squadrons will carry a total of some 825 officers and men as operational and spare crews, and "will remain in Germany as long as there is need for this mission."

The fourth squadron will carry approximately 425 men.

The Air Force said each Skymaster can carry approximately 7 tons of cargo. When used as airliners in this country, they carry from 40 to 60 passengers.

Americans and Britons Under Partial Rationing

Berlin, June 27 (AP).—Americans and Britons in Berlin were subjected to partial rationing today as the Russian land blockade of the city went into its second week.

Western Berlin has only a month's food reserves. Except for relatively small cargoes carried by planes and barges, supply shipments from western Germany for the two million Berliners in the American, British and French sectors remained shut off.

However, the U. S. Air Force's emergency cargo service into Templehof Airport will be expanded to 100 planes daily, bringing in as many essential items as possible for the German population in addition to supplies for Americans here, it was said.

British transport officials said four barges loaded with flour for the German population arrived today and another 20 were "in the

Greek-Bulgar Accord Talks Here Collapse

Envoys at Odds In Attempt to Resume Relations

Bulgaria's Minister, Dr. Nissim Mevorah, disclosed here yesterday that Bulgaria and neighboring Greece have tried but failed to agree on a means of resuming diplomatic relations.

Mevorah said he intends to notify United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie that the Greek-Bulgarian negotiations in Washington have ended in a deadlock.

The talks began June 16 when Mevorah met with Greek Ambassador Vassili Dendramis as directed by their governments to find a basis for exchanging diplomats.

The two envoys did not meet again, the Bulgarian minister reported, because they found during this initial meeting they could not agree on what should be discussed in later conversations.

"I had hoped these conversations would include all the questions outstanding between us," he said. "Unfortunately, the Greek Ambassador was only prepared to discuss the technical resumption of relations."

Greek Ambassador Dendramis, in Philadelphia, said his government would answer Mevorah.

State Department officials believe a change in Bulgaria's long-standing opposition to the present Greek government might herald a change in attitude by Russia and the other eastern European countries.

The Bulgarian diplomat acknowledged his country is giving shelter to refugees from Greece, but stressed that Bulgaria has admitted it from the beginning.

Mevorah emphasized his belief this does not violate international law.

The American people misunderstand this, he said, mainly because United States newspapers present "only the bad side" of Bulgaria.

Some Americans believe Bulgarian foreign policy is made in Moscow, he said, because they don't understand that the two countries think alike very often.

Trooper Thrown Into Ravine by Virginia Miners

Wise, Va., June 27 (AP).—A Virginia State trooper was beaten unconscious and thrown into a 40-foot ravine near Carfax, a mining community, today.

Posses of State and county police arrested five men, four of them miners, and charged them with felonious assault.

The attack followed by 16 days Governor Tuck's order to Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond to take personal charge of the prosecution of 178 miners in nearby Buchanan County charged with a mob assault on a nonunion strip mine.

'In Cards,' Says London

3-Power Approach to Kremlin Expected on Berlin Problem

London, June 27 (AP).—The United States, Britain and France are expected in diplomatic sources to carry their attempt to solve the Berlin crisis directly to the Kremlin.

A Foreign Office spokesman said tonight that a joint three-power approach to Moscow is "in the cards," but no final decision has been made.

Might Ask Red Views

If such a step is taken, the three Western powers possibly might ask the Russians for their views on how the problem can be settled.

But there was no indication here that the Americans, British or French intend to withdraw from Berlin.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin kept in close touch with the Foreign Office from his London home. He is expected to make a short statement to the House of Commons Monday on Germany.

"We Will Not Yield"

Minister of State Hector McNeil said in an address at Greenock, Scotland:

"If we concede the principle that one power can impose upon all the rest in Berlin, we may not know where the concession may end. When we make bargains we make them to keep them. We expect other powers to do the same, and we will not yield upon this."

French Ambassador Rene Massigli flew to Paris today for conferences. Whether he carried with him fresh British proposals for settling the impasse was not disclosed.

Communists Call Half-Day Italy Strike

Rome, Italy, June 27 (U.P.).—Italy's Communist-dominated Labor Federation (CGIL) today called a half-day general strike for workers in all sections of industry on July 2.

The strike call is the opening gun in a new Communist offensive to increase the wages of skilled industrial workers and to harass Premier Alcide de Gasperi's non-Communist government.

Political observers said the CGIL campaign is the biggest since the Communist-inspired strikes of a year ago when the leftists were trying to unseat De Gasperi.

The strike order included metallurgical workers, chemical workers, miners, gasoline pump employes, construction workers, lumbermen, textile workers, and railroad and trolley men.

After the token general strike the CGIL program calls for all chemical workers to strike July 6 from noon on, electricians for 3 hours on July 7 and so on down the line.

At Genoa, the twenty-seventh national Socialist Congress convened to decide whether to break the Socialist alliance with the Communist party in Italy.

Lelio Basso, secretary of the party, stoutly defended its alliance with the Communists and urged the 600 delegates to vote for continuation of the combination.

"The April 18th electoral setback was due to the vigorous conservative counteroffensive," he declared in a three-hour speech.

Giuseppe Romita, Socialist leader, has proposed a resolution calling for complete independence.

Air Force History Credits Roosevelt In Tokyo Raid

The late President Roosevelt himself "apparently" helped plan Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle's spectacular air raid on Tokyo, the first volume of a seven-volume history of "The Army Air Forces in World War II" said yesterday.

Publication of the work on a nonprofit, public-service basis by the University of Chicago Press was announced by the Department of the Air Force.

The 788-page first volume is entitled "Plans and Early Operations." On the subject of the Doolittle raid, it says:

"Apparently, President Roosevelt himself played a role in initiating the expedition, although it is not possible to determine its original author."

The Air Force said that the remaining six volumes would be published at intervals of approximately six months and that the series would comprise "a well-documented and authentic record of the air phase of World War II."

A Fish Tale With Some Evidence

Boy, 17, Rides 60-Foot Whale Like a Bronco, Until It Dives

Provincetown, Mass., June 27 (U.P.).—Two fishermen had a brush with a whale here today and claimed that one of them rode the 60-foot monster like a bucking bronco until it gave up and submerged.

That's the whale of a story of 17-year-old Frank Cabral, jr., and his father, two Provincetown lobstermen. What's more, they came back to port with a hole splintered in one of their two dories and a chunk of whale to back up the yarn.

The youth said he and his father were in separate dories hauling in lobster traps when he spotted the whale headed for his father.

"The whale submerged, rolling his big black back over like a porpoise," young Cabral said. "When he dove there was no doubt he was heading for Pa like a torpedo. Guess he misjudged his direction because he came up right under me.

"My boat went right up out of the water and I went right up out of the boat. I came down on his fat slippery hump. When he hit the boat he tore a chunk from his hide and that seemed to make him really mad."

Young Cabral said he dug his fingers into the whale's soft back and hung on.

That whale was in one terrible hurry. He started for the open sea north of Race Point.

"The spray was blinding me and I just closed my eyes and hoped he'd quit before I did. He did. Suddenly he pulled up short."

Young Cabral said he heard the whale sound and knew the monster was about to submerge.

"That was my chance," he said. "I just abandoned the whale to starboard and started swimming as fast as I could. My boat was still afloat and I swam to it."

Ticket Pleases Vandenberg, Enthusiatic Help Promised

Democratic Chief Sees GOP Controlled

By The Associated Press

The Democratic campaign chief said yesterday that former Senator Joseph R. Grundy of Pennsylvania controlled the Republican selections of a presidential nominee and a national chairman.

Senator J. Howard McGrath, Democratic National Chairman, referred to "high-tariff loving Joe Grundy" in asserting in a statement that:

"Joe Grundy can still dictate the choice of a Republican convention in a series of 'smoke-filled room' deals." And that:

"Grundy can still control the choice of chairman of the Republican National Committee."

[Grundy, reached at his Bristol, Pa., farm last night told a reporter: "I won't have any comment on that."]

McGrath, summing up the GOP convention's results, said the "major deal" was "Grundy's victory . . . swinging Pennsylvania" to Thomas E. Dewey for the presidential nomination. Dewey won out

Michigan Senator Praises Platform

By The Associated Press

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said yesterday "I shall enthusiastically support" the Dewey-Warren ticket chosen by the Republicans for the 1948 presidential campaign.

Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and No. 1 shepherd of the bipartisan foreign policy in the Senate, also said he was highly pleased with the GOP platform.

The Senator had been talked of as a compromise nominee, in the event of a deadlock. None developed.

Vandenberg told a reporter:

"I am completely happy about the Philadelphia results. I shall enthusiastically support the ticket. Governor Dewey represents the finest type of administrative genius available in the country. Governor Warren as his running mate is equally of presidential stature.

"They both stand on a forthright platform which is the best we have had in many years. It is an unequivocal commitment to international cooperation for peace

Six of Ten in District Oppose Arms Shipments to Israel

Six out of 10 Greater Washingtonians are opposed to United States shipment of arms to the new state of Israel, according to The Washington Post Poll. Two out of 10 favor the step, but there are some qualifications.

About 43 per cent of Washington area residents interviewed also are opposed to lending American dollars to the new Jewish state. Only 28 per cent of the residents are for an unrestricted loan while 7 per cent favor use of the money for peaceful purposes only.

The pollsters found that many Washingtonians were not familiar with events surrounding the Palestine issue. Thirty-one per cent say they have not been following it in the news; know little or nothing about the issues involved. An additional 29 per cent state that their sympathies are not wholeheartedly with the Jews or the Arabs because the rights of the matter are so confused.

Only 40 per cent of local residents take a definite side. Twenty-eight per cent favor a Jewish state while 12 per cent favor the Arabs.

Washingtonians were asked:

"Are you for or against shipping arms to Israel?"

The replies:

Favor shipping arms to Israel	16%
Favor if they are paid for, if Britain supplies the Arabs, etc.	5
Opposed to shipping arms	59
No opinion	20

The Washington Post pollers then asked:

"At the present time the United States does not ship arms, or lend money to the new Jewish State of Israel in Palestine. Are you for or against lending money to Israel?"

Favor a loan if the money is used only for peaceful purposes	7%
Opposed to a loan	43%

Navajos Protest Inflation in Goat Market

Window Rock, Ariz., June 27 (U.P.).—The Navajo Indian tribal council met today to protest against recent "relief" measures passed by Congress and cited the inflated goat market as one of its chief complaints.

A Navajo spokesman said that during a stock reduction program in 1937, the Government forced tribesmen to sell goats at 50 cents, and now has offered to loan them money to buy new animals, but the price has now risen to $8 to $10.

The council started a three-day meeting here in an attempt to straighten out the recent appropriation measure which would give them $100,000 to buy milk cows and goats.

Spokesmen said that instead of a "relief" appropriation, the money was available only through loans.

Norfolk Storm Batters 7 Ships

Norfolk, Va., June 27 (U.P.).—A wind and rain storm headed across northeastern North Carolina tonight after ripping through Norfolk harbor. Police reported widespread damage.

At Norfolk seven ships were torn from their moorings as the wind blasted across Hampton Roads. The SS Exporter sent an emergency call for aid.

Traffic was halted around Suffolk, Va., as the wind tossed down trees and telephone poles.

Reds Swallow Czech Social Democrats

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 27 (AP).—The Communist Party swallowed up the 60-year-old Czech Social Democratic Party today. The ceremonies were held amid the blood-red trappings of Lucerna Hall, largest auditorium in central Prague.

Delegates of the two parties, sitting beneath photographs of the prophets of socialism, ratified the union, which threw another 250,000 party members into the Communist cardholder ranks. The Communist Party name was retained.

President Klement Gottwald, a Communist, continues as chairman of the combined parties, whose membership now is more than 1,750,000.

Slansky Gets Post

Rudolf Slansky, a powerful political figure and one of the founders of the Cominform, is the secretary-general. Deputy Premier Zdenek Fierlinger, the left-wing Social Democrat who led his party into the fusion after throwing out right-wingers in the February revolt, is to be vice chairman of the merged parties.

Every mention of Gottwald's name drew prolonged cheering and applause, matched only by the response to a "long live General Stalin" voiced by one speaker.

Photographs of Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin and Gottwald were flanked by Communist Party flags. The three ranks of tables on the dais were draped in red.

Benes' Name Cheered

A half block away, thousands of youths paraded through the Vaclavski Namest' in a Sokol demonstration celebrating the first international congress of the 80-year-old physical culture society since the war. Only the Czechoslovak flag, the Sokol flag and two American flags were seen in the parade.

The Sokol tradition...lly has been conservative, but all classes consider the Sokol a national institution.

Five times in the square paraders raised the cry "long live President Benes" and twice they cried "long live Brother Benes."

Until a parading delegation from the trade unions came by, there were no such cries for Gottwald. The trade unionists proposed a cheer to President Gottwald and there was silence in the square except for the shuffling of feet and the far-off cries of the Sokol youth who had passed or were approaching.

New Discovery

Drug Cures Typhoid In 3 Days

Baltimore, June 27 (AP).—A new drug that can cure typhoid fever within three days was reported today by a Maryland physician and an Army doctor.

The drug, derived from a fungus, chloromycetin. It has been administered successfully to 13 typhoid fever sufferers since last spring.

The drug was described by Dr. Theodore E. Woodward of the University of Maryland's School of Medicine and Col. Rufus L. Holt, commandant of the Army medical department research and graduate school in Washington, D. C.

Scrub-Typhus Cured

Its first clinical tests were made against scrub typhus. Chloromycetin brought swift cures in scrub-typhus cases, often within 24 hours.

Three typhoid fever cases have been treated in Baltimore, and in every instance the drug broke the illness within three days, Dr. Woodward said.

Scrub typhus is carried by an insect, a mite. Typhoid fever is transmitted through contamination of food or water.

Dr. Woodward recently returned to Baltimore from Kula Lumbur, Malaya, where an Army scrub-typhus team tested the drug.

Members of Team

On the team were Dr. Woodward, Dr. Joseph E. Smadel, director of the Army epidemiological board; Lieut. Herbert L. Ley, jr., of the Army Medical Center department of virus and rickettsial diseases; Col. Cornelius P. Philip of the Hamilton (Montana) Public Health Service, and Maj. Robert Traub, director of the Army Medical Center department of parasitology.

Chloromycetin was provided by Parke, Davis & Co. of Detroit.

Dr. Woodward declared credit for isolation of chloromycetin must go to Dr. P. R. Burkholder, of Yale University.

McGrath said a "qualified statement in favor of reciprocal trade agreements" and encouragement of world commerce was scratched out of the tentative GOP platform.

Democratic Record Defended

Representative McCormack (D., Mass.) said in a statement yesterday "the Democrats accept the challenge of Governors Dewey and Warren when they said that the 16 years under President Roosevelt were, according to Dewey, a 'long drought' and according to Warren that the period was a 'famine.'"

McCormack said Warren especially would regret "such an intemperate and false statement because the memory of President Roosevelt is revered, and particularly so in California, and throughout the great West."

Also, McCormack said that "if it were not for the leadership of President Truman it is quite probable that all of Europe would now be under the domination of the Communists."

Egyptian Minister Quits Over Sudan Issue

Cairo, Egypt, June 27 (AP).—Reliable sources said today Egyptian Foreign Minister Ahmed Khashaba Pasha has resigned over the question of the Sudan.

Khashaba Pasha had approved personally a draft agreement on Anglo-Egyptian administration of the Sudan with Sir Ronald Campbell, British Ambassador here. The Council of Ministers rejected the draft.

The Egyptian government has been calling for union of the entire Nile Valley under the Egyptian crown. This would mean an end of the joint rule by Egypt and Britain since 1899.

1069 Border Jumpers Freed in Bohemia

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 27 (U.P.).—Newspapers reported today that 2775 ordinary prisoners and 1069 persons who attempted to cross the frontier have been freed in Bohemia and Moravia under the amnesty announced last week by President Klement Gottwald.

Figures for Slovakia were not yet available.

Minister of Justice Alexej Cepicka announced there were approximately 18,000 persons in jail in Czechoslovakia before amnesty was declared. These included more than 12,000 serving sentences, under a "retribution decree," for collaboration and war crimes.

Scott, N. C. Winner, Sees Democratic Victory at Polls

Raleigh, N. C., June 27 (AP).—W. Kerr Scott, winner of Saturday's Democratic primary runoff for governor of North Carolina, today looked forward confidently to his party's traditional victory in November. The Democrats have been victorious in Statewide political races for nearly 50 yeas.

Scott swept past State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson in the runoff afted four candidates were eliminated in the first primary May 29.

Almost complete, unofficial returns from the State's 1952 precincts gave Scott a sizable 36,000-vote lead over Johnson. Of 1877 precincts reporting, Scott had 215,863 to Johnson's 179,741.

Republican candidate George M. Pritchard of Asheville will oppose Scott in the general election.

In the other runoff vote of Statewide interest, F. Ertel Carlyle was nominated over Hargrove Bellamy for United States representative from the State's seventh district. The post is being vacated by Representative J. Bayard Clark, a Democrat who is retiring.

Aborigines Just Learn Of Jap Surrender

Singapore, June 27 (AP).—Eighty-one Sakai aborigines who fled into the Johore jungles six years ago to escape the war learned today the Japanese have surrendered.

The aborigines, all naked, told forest rangers who located them they were amazed to learn the British had returned. Their leader said the group had fled into the wildest part of the jungle in 1942 when they heard Chinese guerillas would kill them as suspected informers for the Japanese.

A British doctor who examined the group said they are in excellent health, although they have eaten no salt for seven years.

pipeline." They said they had no explanation why the Russians were permitting a few barges to pass after a thorough inspection at the zonal boundary and yet were halting all land traffic.

Maj. Gen. E. O. Herbert, the British commandant, announced the British army and control commission are introducing economies to save food, power and other supplies during the crisis. He forbade large parties. American authorities announced similar measures.

The British will pool their official motor transport in Berlin beginning Tuesday. Clubs were ordered to close at 10:30 p. m. Afternoon movies will be discontinued. Britons were asked to "walk where they can" and to remove bulbs from lights which are not essential.

Germans Look to Allies

Germans looked to the Western Allies for decisive assurances that American, British and French troops will maintain their positions as joint occupiers here.

Meanwhile, Russian-controlled newspapers and broadcasts intensified the war of nerves against the western powers and the Berliners under western jurisdiction.

There were renewed demands the allies withdraw and attempts to persuade Berliners that they would be better off "in a united city" under sole occupancy of the Russians.

Appeal From Bishop

[The New York Herald Tribune told of a strong plea to the four occupying powers from the Protestant Bishop of Berlin, Dr. Otto Dibelius, to end the economic warfare. "In this power struggle," he said, "it is not the occupation powers who suffer, but the population, which stands defenseless."

[He said the dispute had "allowed the black market to become rampant and undermined the authority of the law by contradictory orders. He said the occupation powers, "having taken complete power, bear responsibility for the moral fate of the population" and asked them to restore traffic and "grant self-government and freedom to the people."]

Communist propaganda sought to spread the impression that the British and French were in favor of withdrawing, but that the Americans were inducing them to remain.

There were indications also in the Russian-licensed press that new four-power discussions of the German situation might be the aim of the Soviet Union.

An editorial in the Berliner Zeitung said:

"The western powers must now either declare themselves ready to conclude a peace treaty for all Germany on a four-power basis or they must leave Berlin."

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor, met his British counterpart, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, at Clay's headquarters today. It was announced that they "discussed the general situation."

Clay's political advisor, Robert Murphy, conferred with the French deputy military governor, Gen. Roger Noiret.

Russians Fire Utilities Chief

The Russians fired the German chief of electric utilities in their sector of the city, alleging that he sabotaged their orders for cutting off power for western Berlin.

Attempts to incite a general strike in Berlin to protest the introduction of the new western German currency failed. Trade union leaders in the Russian sector voted against attempting such a walkout since they doubted it could be made effective.

The Soviet-sponsored mark was taking a beating from the western Allies' Deutsch mark in the Berlin black market. Although theoretically they should be at par, there were reports that some traders were giving as high as 40 eastern (or Sokolovsky) marks for one western (Clay) mark.

American police said they had received orders to "lay off or at least ease up" on arresting Russian speeders after Marshall V. Sokolovsky, the Soviet commander, was stopped for speeding last night in the American sector. The Soviet commander was freed with an apology.

The Russians today released an American soldier courier after holding him for 24 hours on a charge of speeding, United States military police reported. The soldier, identified as Sergt. Charles C. Staggers drove into the Russian portion of Berlin yesterday in a jeep.

Student Murders Wife, 2 Children, Then Kills Self

Portland, Oreg., June 27 (AP).—A psychology student who brooded over a college failure slew his attractive blond wife, their two young children and then fatally wounded himself early today.

Police broke down the door of a cottage occupied by Robert C. Stoller, jr., 25, after an anonymous telephone call was received asking for a coroner at the house.

Detective Capt. William Brown said Stoller had shot himself with a .22-caliber rifle. A kitchen carving knife was found at his side. The nightgown-clad body of his pretty wife, Lauralee, 24, was found in a bed. Three shots had been fired into her forehead. A stab wound pierced her heart. Her skull also was crushed.

Four-year-old Christian and 16-month-old Pam Jane were dead in their cribs. Each was slain with a single bullet in the head.

Democrat Stassen Offer Ridiculed

Point Pleasant, N. J., June 27 (U.P.).—Amos Peaslee, who helped manage Harold E. Stassen's unsuccessful bid for the Republican presidential nomination, today denied reports that Stassen was interested in seeking the Democratic nomination.

He described as "complete nonsense" reports that a group of Democratic leaders were meeting with Stassen at Peaslee's home here.

Peaslee said the former Minnesota Governor and several of his campaign workers, including Ted Gamble, were visiting with him over the weekend and would leave for Minneapolis Tuesday.

"They're all good Republicans and we can't see a Democrat around," he said.

Marshall Plan Still Target Of Red Party

Paris, June 27 (NYHT).—Jacques Duclos, secretary of the French Communist Party, indicated here today that the Marshall Plan for European reconstruction is still the main target of the Communist Party line, and that the party program was not changed in any respect at the recent meetings he attended with other European Communist leaders.

Duclos was French observer during the conference of foreign ministers of the eighth eastern states in Warsaw. He also is reported to have participated a short time ago in a general conference of the Cominform. Back in Paris this afternon, he spoke at a rally at Vincennes, and the Marshall Plan continued to be the principal object of his attacks.

"We (the Communists)," he said, "intend to fight with all our might for the independence of France. We are fighting and we shall continue to fight against the treaties of shame and slavery which unworthy governments have dared to accept.

"We are fighting and we shall continue to fight against the Marshall Plan and its consequences, such as the Brussels military alliance, the London agreement (for western Germany) and the Franco-American bi-lateral treaty (of the European recovery program). They tend to turn France into an American colony."

Gunman Kills Man, Wounds Companion

An Alexandria man was found fatally shot with another man badly wounded lying beside him in a garage at 528 N. Alfred st., Alexandria, yesterday.

Pronounced dead upon arrival at Alexandria Hospital was Jose Elzie, 34, of the Alfred st. address. He had been shot once through the heart with a .38-caliber revolver.

Critically wounded was Alvin Colbert, 35, of 813 Madison st., Alexandria. He was shot in the stomach once, also with a .38.

Shortly after the shooting was discovered at 5 p. m., police issued a warrant charging murder and felonious assault against James McDowell, an Alexandria laborer. Police said McDowell had fled on a bicycle from the scene of the shooting.

An unidentified woman, police said, told them she had met McDowell earlier on the street near the garage and that he had suddenly pulled a revolver and fired three shots into the open door of the garage.

Troops Rout Greek Rebels In 3 Clashes

Athens, June 27 (AP).—A government communique said today Communist guerillas were beaten off by government troops as they attempted to cut the Ioannina-Preveza road in northwest Greece.

The communique reported the guerillas suffered 105 casualties in three clashes with Nationalist forces on approaches to the Grammos Mountains.

The rebels, partly destroyed the Elasson-Kozane road in Thessaly yesterday, and attacked the supply lane from Kozane to Grevena.

Pope Advises 500 Workers to Be Soldiers of Christ

Vatican City, June 27 (AP).—Pope Pius XII told 500 workmen of the Communist stronghold of Sesto San Giovanni today to be "front line soldiers of Christ."

The Pope did not mention communism by name.

"Vengeance and hate," the Pope said, "are not the weapons of the Christian soldier, but prayer and love for all—even enemies."

He urged his listeners to devote themselves to bringing about "healthy social reforms" that would dignify the conditions of all workers and enable them to live in peace.

"But," he added, "all should know that these reforms can be effected only on the basis of God's law and Christian principles, and by men who are truly animated by the Christian spirit."

To Vote Thursday

Finn Parties Campaign For Election

Helsinki, June 27 (NYHT).—Finland will hold its second post-war election next Thursday and Friday, and the forecast tonight was that the Communists and extreme left Socialists would lose a few seats in the single chamber Diet (Parliament). They now have 51 out of the 200 seats.

The campaign has been under way for more than three weeks. It has developed into a vigorous fight between the Peoples' Democratic Union (the Communists and extreme left Socialists) and the non-Communist parties headed by the Social Democrats and the right-of-center Agrarians.

The non-Communist parties openly charge the Peoples' Democratic Union with attempting to set up a minority dictatorship and import a "foreign ideology." In reply, the Peoples' Democratic Union leaders claim they alone can get along with Russia and will work for the benefit of the working classes. They say even the Social Democrats will betray the cause of the workers.

In spite of the conception in the west that this country is "behind the iron curtain" and is a satellite of its neighbor, Soviet Russia, the atmosphere of the campaign is strikingly to the contrary.

Unlike the elections in the other countries of eastern Europe, Finland's elections find many parties competing with each other. There is no single list of government-sponsored candidates.

Additionally, the campaign is a fair free-for-all-fight, according to all sections of Finnish political thought and veteran foreign observers. The voting will be free and secret.

At the same time, there have been several moves from Moscow obviously designed to support the Peoples' Democratic Union. The prinncipal Soviet moves have been:

1. The announcement of a 50 per cent cut in the 150 million dollars remaining on Finland's reparations account to Russia.

2. Russia's acquiescence to most of Finland's counter-proposals for the Soviet-Finnish treaty of mutual assistance.

3. The absence of any Soviet objection to the government's dismissal a few weeks ago of the Communist Minister of the Interior, Yrjo Leino. Finland is now the only country in the so-called Soviet sphere that does not have a Communist Minister of the Interior. Although the country's leading Communist—Leino's wife, Hertta Kuusinen, now minister without portfolio—won a seat in the cabinet in the shake-up, most Finns regarded the outcome with marked relief.

This sort of Soviet "interference" in the elections is frankly and widely welcomed. But even the Communists doubt whether it will increase their strength—in the Diet.

Count Barnadotte Completes His 'Suggestions' for Peace

Rhodes, June 27 (U.P.).—Count Folke Bernadotte, hoping to negotiate a permanent settlement of Palestine problems, announced tonight that he would send peace "suggestions" to Jewish and Arab leaders probably Tuesday.

He disclosed he had completed today his "suggestions" to the contending leaders as a basis for negotiations.

Bernadotte hopes first to keep the Arabs and Jews from resuming their war when the four-week Palestine truce ends at 2 a. m. EDT, July 9, and secondly, to work up to formal negotiations for a permanent settlement.

Israeli Soldiers Must Take Allegiance Oath

Tel Aviv, Israel, June 27 (NYHT). As the final phase of its war against rebellious underground groups, the army of Israel announced today every Jewish soldier will be required to take an oath of allegiance to the provisional government.

Israeli armored cars struck at dawn today against suspected hideouts of Irgun Zvai Leumi in Tel Aviv and its environs. Four suspected Irgunists and a quantity of arms were seized.

On order of Count Bernadotte, United Nations mediator, five military observers returned to the Egyptian headquarters in Majdal. They had been withdrawn by U. N. officials here in protest against the alleged Egyptian truce breach, Bernadotte's action indicated he hoped for an amical settlement.

The Jewish convoy route to Jerusalem, by way of Arab-held Latrun, was closed today by U. N. order. Observers decided a careful tally should be made of the food stocks Jerusalem has received before more convoys enter.

Soviet Contends Dewey Backed by Wall Street

Moscow, June 27 (AP).—The first editorial comment in the Soviet press on the Republican National Convention pictured Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today as the representative of the "aggressive plans of Wall Street."

I. Ilin, writing in the newspaper Socialist Agriculture, said the convention accetped a paltform "supporting an expansionist foreign policy and reactionary measures inside the Nation."

Warren Family Sees Sights of New York

New York, June 27 (U.P.).—Republican Vice Presidential Nominee Earl Warren arrived today from Philadelphia to show his wife and three pretty blonde daughters the sights of New York.

The 57-year-old California Governor and his family stepped from a train in Pennsylvania Station into a barage of photographers' flashbulbs.

Warren beamed broadly as they posed.

An escort of a dozen policemen shepherded the family through an underground passage, up an escalator and into two State cars which whisked them to the Pennsylvania Hotel—just across the street from the station.

The Governor looked a little tired following his strenuous week at the GOP National Convention, but said he expected to catch up on his rest during a three- or four-day visit here.

He said he would see Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential nominee, sometime before going back to Sacramento. Dewey expects Warren to visit him on the New York Governor's farm near Pawling, N. Y.

Warren was stopping over in New York primarily to fulfill a promise made to Mrs. Warren and the girls before he was nominated for Vice President. He had promised the three blue-eyed daughters —Virginia, 19; Dorothy, 17, and Nina (Honey Bear), 14—that he would spend a few days in New York with them.

The last thing Warren did before leaving Philadelphia was to take Mrs. Warren and the daughters to see historic Independence Hall.

Congress Hit

CIO Paper Finds 7 Laws Bad, 4 Good

By The Associated Press

The CIO News said yesterday that the "bad outweighs the good" in the Eightieth Congress' record.

It listed seven "bad" bills passed, four which it called good or fair, and promised soon a voting guide with the records of the lawmakers on major issues.

The union weekly listed these bills to which it objected:

1. Taft-Hartley Act.

2. Wage-hour amendment—"under guise of outlawing portal suits, wage-hour law was badly whittled down."

3. Gearhart proposals—"a bill and a joint resolution which keep a million people out of Social Security system." (This legislation by Representative Gearhart (R., Calif.), passed over President Truman's veto, defined independent contractors under the old-age insurance laws. Estimates of the number affected varied.)

4. Reed-Bulwinkle bill—"It gives railroads a good chance of getting completely out of the antitrust law on rate-fixing." (It excuses carriers from prosecution if their rate-making agreements are approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.)

5. "Spare-the-rich" tax bill—"Wealthy families get big tax cuts; the rest of us get peanuts."

6. Labor Department "weakened"—"The United States Employment Service was torn out of Labor Department, made a minor bureau in Federal Security Agency."

7. Peacetime draft — "Labor, church groups opposed it and lost."

The CIO News described these as "good or fair measures passed":

1. European recovery program and an appropriation for it.

2. Rent control—"Extended but not nearly as strong as it should have been."

3. GI terminal leave bonds—"GIs to cash their bonds at any time."

4. GI apprenticeship benefits—"Increase in benefits to vets in on-the-job training positions."

EISENHOWER—Fr. P. 1

thought likely to give him some votes. Arkansas, the third State, has some more Eisenhower backers. California, the fourth State, is a quantity so uncertain that it might easily defy party leadership and the claims of regularity and go for Eisenhower. If this happened, a real convention bandwagon might get under way.

This is what some of the anti-Truman Democrats are hoping. As for the general, he stands where he stood on January 22. He has felt no call to repeat his statement. It is doubtful if he will say anything more on the subject. He hopes there will be no necessity for saying more. His decision today still is "definite and positive" in the language of his January letter. His statement that he "could not accept nomination even under the remote circumstances that it were tendered me" applies with equal force to Democratic and Republican parties.

The general feels that he has made it perfectly clear that he is not a candidate for the nomination of either party. He has had his say on the subject. He has nothing further to add. He is going to stand by it.

Wisconsin Convention In Eisenhower Uproar

Madison, Wis., June 27 (AP).—The Wisconsin Democratic convention ended in an uproar today over whether it should beseech Gen. Dwight Eisenhower to be the party's candidate for President.

The two-day meeting of 400 party members came to a sudden end on a ruling by Chairman Leland McParland that a motion to adjourn had been passed before the Eisenhower question could be debated.

Eisenhower as Truman Replacement Reported

Minneapolis, June 27 (U.P.).—An official of Americans for Democratic Action said today that President Truman may withdraw from the presidential race to allow the Democratic convention to nominate Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Douglas B. Anderson, Chicago, midwest representative of the ADA, told the state ADA convention here that Eisenhower "will accept a draft nomination if President Truman withdraws." He did

Actor Sought

Film Beauty, Maid Slain In Manila

Manila, June 27 (AP). — Lilian Velez, beautiful brunette radio and film actress, and her maid were stabbed to death at 2 a. m. today by a man who broke into her home in suburban Quezon City.

Miss Velez

Police announced they were seeking for questioning Narding Anzures, popular actor with whom Miss Velez had made several movies.

The actress' 4-year-old daughter and another maid said the killer entered the house by cutting a window screen and stabbing Miss Velez and the maid with an old United States Army hunting knife. They said the man fled in a taxicab after failing to break down the door of a room in which the child and maid took refuge. Police said the cab had been stolen.

Joe Climaco, the actress' husband, was performing in a night club at the time. He said his wife had costarred with Anzures in several pictures but he did not believe there was any romantic attachment.

Later, Anzures surrendered voluntarily.

Dewey Family Goes to Church

For half an hour after the service the Deweys chatted informally with friends on the front lawn of the church.

Governor Dewey told newsmen he expected to spend the rest of the day quietly at his farm. Mrs. Dewey was suffering from a cold that bothered her through the convention.

Mrs. Dewey attended church wearing a green and white dress, green straw hat and silver fox neckpiece. Governor Dewey wore a gray suit, blue tie and no hat.

Dewey is Episcopalian, but the service at Christ Church is nondenominational. The church was given to the Quaker Hill community by one of its members, Albert Akin, who specified that no single denomination should meet there regularly, and that no collections should be taken during the service. There is a collection box on the wall of the vestibule, to receive contributions after the service.

The church was originally located on another site about a block away. Its present site was occupied for many years by an inn. The inn was given the name Mizzentop Inn by Admiral John Worden, commander of the Monitor in its Civil War battle with the Merrimac. He named a higher section of Quaker Hill Maintop. According to Lowell Thomas, radio commentator and resident of Pawling, Gen. Lew Wallace wrote Ben Hur while staying at the inn.

The inn was torn down as a fire trap some years ago, and about 15 years ago the church building was moved to the site. The Sunday school still meets in what was the bowling alley for the inn. The church is a simple white frame structure, facing north across a wide lawn, bordered by oaks and other trees. To the west the hill drops away to give a wide view of the Harlem valley through the clear glass church windows.

Dewey plans to stay at the farm until about Wednesday, then go to Albany to catch up on State business. Tentative plans call for him to return to Pawling Saturday for a vacation which will probably last until after the Democratic National convention.

After the vacation in Pawling, Dewey plans to visit his mother in Owosso, Mich., and then go to Sapulpa, Okla., the home of his wife's parents.

An all-out political campaign won't start until after Labor Day, however, his aides pointed out.

the fighting between the Arabs and the new Jewish State of Israel. Which side do you favor?"

Their replies:

Know little or nothing about the matter	31%
Favor neither side—both sides have their rights; they are both in the wrong; let them fight it out themselves	29%
Favor Israel	28%
Favor Arabs	12%
	100%

69 Per Cent Favor Israel

Of those who favor one side or the other, 69 per cent sympathize with Israel, while 31 per cent feel the Arabs are more in the right.

Chief reason given by those who favor Israel is that the Jewish people are entitled to a homeland (46 per cent). Others say that according to the Bible, the Jews should have Israel (21 per cent); that the U. N. decision on the partition of Palestine should be upheld (11 per cent); that the Jews are entitled to the land because they have done more to develop it than the Arabs (9 per cent). Ten per cent of this group favor Israel simply because they are Jews themselves. The remainder give a variety of other reasons, or no reason at all.

Among those who favor the Arabs, 61 per cent feel that the Arabs have homestead rights, having been on the land so long, and should not be pushed off; 20 per cent don't like the Jewish people or their methods; 5 per cent oppose the partition of Palestine. The remainder give a variety of other reasons or no reason.

Democrats Vote Today

name will appear on the official ballot, but space will also be provided for writing in other choices, Melvin D. Hildreth, committee chairman, said last night.

Douglas, Eisenhower Preferred

The District Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action, an anti-Communist, New Dealish group, has indicated a preference for Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas or Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

The local unit of Veterans for Eisenhower has put on a campaign via handbills and loudspeakers urging the writing-in of the general's name for the nomination.

Another write-in candidate is expected from Democrats seeking to register disapproval of President Truman's civil rights program, Hildreth said. The name of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina has been mentioned, he said.

The local delegates are bound to support the presidential candidate receiving the highest number of votes in today's balloting. About 5000 ballots have been printed, 4000 more than the number usually cast, Hildreth said. The votes will be counted at the Pythian Temple, 1012 9th st. nw., upon completion of balloting, Hildreth said.

Qualifications Needed

All Democrats, 21 years of age and over, who claim at least two years' residence in the District and have not voted elsewhere, are eligible to vote today, Hildreth said. No evidence of residence is required other than the voter's "own word," Hildreth said.

The ballot will also contain a question on whether convention delegates should be bound by unit rule to follow the majority decision. ADA has urged its members to vote against this, while the Democratic committee has asked support of it.

ADA is supporting four of its members for the 12-man delegation and six members for the 22-man committee. Their names were placed on the ballot after a court dispute on the primary.

The polling places are the cabinet room, Willard Hotel, 14th and F sts. nw.; Pythian Temple, 1352 U st. nw.; 826 Bladensburg rd. ne.; 141 B st. se.; 409 7th st. sw., and 5323 East Capitol st. Two members of the District's Young Democratic Club will staff each polling place.

Hildreth announced the District delegates will make its headquarters at the Penn-Sheraton Hotel in Philadelphia during the convention.

At this point, the other two suspects broke away, running. Flanagan, Trehern and Hylton took off after them, leaving Crenshaw and the third suspect.

One of the fugitives escaped. The other was captured and shortly afterward was released.

Then Flanagan and the other two patrolmen walked to the guard room.

When they didn't see Crenshaw nor his prisoner, they returned to the Capitol grounds and found Crenshaw's prostrate body.

The wounded policeman was taken to Casualty Hospital where his condition was reported "critical."

The wounded policeman had joined the Capitol force after retiring as a streetcar operator for the Capital Transit Co., in 1945. He is a native of Walhalla, S. C. His wife, Roberta, and a son, Albert, reside at 1429 B st. ne.

"It rightfully insists that we must prudently consult our own welfare and security in these respects. But it fully recognizes our own self-interest in the freedom, welfare and independence of others. These things answer every wish that took me to Philadelphia."

Platform Seen Liberal

Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.) said in a radio (CBS) talk:

"It's a very, very liberal platform. As to the Democratic Party's convention upcoming, I don't know what it's going to be because the Democrats have liberals, radicals and conservatives in unhappy combination."

Senator Morse (R., Oreg.), who sometimes strays from the party's fold in the Senate, said in another radio (Station WEAM) talk that the Old Guard philosophy died in the Philadelphia convention.

"We can now look for a good many years of constitutional liberalism because Dewey and Warren are of liberal thought," Morse said. He added that the Republican platform guarantees that the Government will "protect the politically weak and the economically weak against the politically strong and economically strong."

Truman Walks to Church, Hears Sermon on Loyalty

President Truman yesterday walked nine blocks from the White House to the First Baptist Church to hear a sermon on "Religion as Personal Loyalty."

He dropped in on the 9:30 a. m. service and was picked up at the conclusion by a White House car.

Pastor Edward Hughes Pruden described the Christian religion as differing from all others in that "it gives the primary place to a personal relationship between the individual and God.

"Someone has referred to our present civilization as a cut-flower civilization," Pastor Pruden said. "We still have the blossoms but the roots have been cut.

"If we are to maintain and preserve for future generations those elements in our American way of life which we cherish most, we must re-establish and strengthen that spiritual relationship out of which these things have been produced."

Catholic Hour Sermon

The Right Rev. Msgr. Frederick G. Hochwalt, director of the department of education for the National Catholic Welfare Conference, told a National Broadcasting Co. radio audience that religion left out of a school curriculum implies that "the things of God are not as essential to human well-being as are the things of the world."

Msgr. Hochwalt, speaking over the Catholic Hour, said that since American citizenship carries with it not only many rights and privileges but even greater duties and responsibilities, "it is necessary to provide an educational climate that will make it possible for the student to unravel the problems and grasp the complexities of modern civilization.

Chaplain John J. Twiss, assistant district chaplain of the Potomac River Naval Command, yesterday marked his twenty-fifth anniversary as a Catholic priest with a mass at the Naval Receiving Station Chapel.

Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan and Bishop Thomas Toolen of Mobile, Ala., were among the more than 250 naval officers and enlisted personnel and religious and Government leaders who attended. Chaplain Twiss' 74-year-old mother, Mrs. Anna Twiss, flew in from Boston to attend the ceremony.

Bishop Ireton Here

The Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, Bishop of Richmond, yesterday blessed the cornerstone, foundation and the site of the permanent altar of St. Anne's Catholic Church, 10th and North Frederick st., Arlington. The mass was said by the Rev. R. Dixon Beattie, pastor, and the sermon "Cornerstone of Life" was given by the Right Rev. Edward L. Stephens, dean of Northern Virginia.

The Rev. Frank Blackwelder, new rector of All Souls Memorial Episcopal Church, said at the morning service at his church that "people wish to dedicate their lives to some great purpose.

"They wish deeply to belong to a cause to which they can give all-out life-service. And sooner or later some good cause like Christianity will attract them or some evil cause like Nazism will appeal to them. Some high mission like peace or some terrible mission like war will become an inevitable choice."

The Rev. C. Stanley Lowell, speaking at Wesley Methodist Church, declared that "faith is the key to power."

"The man whose faith is centered in God moves through life calm and serene. He fears neither pain nor illness, nor trouble. He is a stranger to the cowardly emotions of nervous people," he said.

GW to Receive $8500 for Chest Clinic

George Washington University will receive a check for $8500 Tuesday to begin operation of a thoracic clinic in its new hospital.

Presentation of the grant—one year's instalment on a three-year program—will be made at 11:30 a. m. in the office of Dean Walter A. Bleedorn, medical director of the hospital.

Dr. Bleedorn said the funds, totaling $25,500 over the three-year authorized period, were granted by the Tuberculosis Association. They will permit the study of problems of diagnosis and treatment of chronic chest diseases, he said.

Most of the patients receiving treatment will be referred by private physicians and the local Health Department. Specific goals, it was said, include "demonstration and development through research of new procedures for evaluating latent pulmonary tuberculosis," provision of posthospital treatment for selected patients, provision of "interim medical supervision for those who can't get hospital beds."

D. C. Restaurant Owner Dies As Car Hits Tree in Maryland

Joseph E. Mislen, 49, of 1008 I st. nw., owner of the Shiek Restaurant, died, apparently of a heart attack, last night while driving a car filled with 11 persons back from North Beach.

Police said his car apparently went out of control and struck a tree. The accident occurred about 8:20 p. m. a mile east of Marlboro. Others in the car, police said, were not injured.

Mislen, a native of Palestine who had lived in the United States since 1920, and the others had spent the day at the beach and were returning home. He was pronounced dead upon arrival at Casualty Hospital.

Police said in the car with him at the time of the accident were his wife, Mrs. Fahemek Misleh, and their five children: Mrs. Anna Salamy, 26, of 4210 East-West hwy.; Lorraine, 17, Norman, 16, Rose, 12, and Wadad, 10.

Also in the car Mrs. Salamy's three children and her brother-in-law, Farris Salamy of the East-West hwy. address.

Three persons were injured in a triple collision in Silver Spring.

The smashup occurred, police said, when Dr. William D. Aud, 9006 Colesville rd., stopped his car near his home before turning into his driveway.

Another car, operated, police said, by Miss Florence J. Hover, 17, of 9415 Wire ave., Silver Spring, crashed into the rear, shoving it into the path of an oncoming automobile, operated by Harry J. Grahe, 68, of 2624 Robb st., Baltimore.

Dr. Aud, although shaken up, treated Grahe, his wife, Nora, and Miss Hover in his office for cuts and bruises.

Extra Session Fades

Governor Dewey's decision that he will make no effort to send Congress back to Washington to finish its chores will be a keen disappointment to many who had hoped that various important bills would be saved from extinction. Before the Philadelphia convention there had been hope that the Republican Congress, urged by the presidential nominee, would wish to improve its record on Federal aid to housing, the United Nations headquarters loan and other issues.

It is difficult to agree with Mr. Dewey that such a return would be a "frightful imposition" on members of Congress. The legislative program could be completed and still leave ample time for campaigning, but there are other reasons that militate against this course.

The real difficulty about a resumption of the session is that the new relationships established at Philadelphia seem to have made it impracticable. Being only a candidate for the Presidency, Mr. Dewey obviously could not call Congress into session, and if he induced the leaders of the Senate and House to come back to Washington, they would certainly expect him to have a legislative program. Being absorbed by his duties as Governor, Mr. Dewey probably has no such program at this time, and it is extremely doubtful that he has had an opportunity to study any of the controversial legislation that a returning Congress would be expected to deal with. In the absence of such opportunity, he could not, of course, assume responsibility for advising Congress, and, in any event, such advice from a candidate who has never occupied the White House would be regarded as premature and presumptuous.

Clearly, then, if Congress is to come back before January it will have to be at the call of President Truman. Only in case of a grave emergency could a session thus called, while all politicians will be wearing chips on their shoulders, be expected to accomplish anything. Apparently hopes for the enactment of constructive legislation in many fields must be deferred until 1949 when, it is hoped, the administration in power will have a Congress of the same political complexion.

Handbills And The Law

Traffic Policeman Alexander Siegal believed he was doing his duty when he arrested Jack Kutner on a charge of distributing Eisenhower-for-President handbills. His purpose was not to discourage such political activities but to prevent the littering of the city's streets. What he did not know was, first, that there is no District law forbidding such distribution; on the contrary, it is specifically authorized; and, secondly, even if there were such a local prohibition, it would be unconstitutional under a decision handed down by the Supreme Court in 1938, in the case of Lovell v. City of Griffin. The court then declared invalid a city ordinance requiring a license for the distribution of circulars or literature of any kind on the ground that it was an unconstitutional invasion of the freedom of the press. "The liberty of the press," Chief Justice Hughes said, "is not confined to newspapers and periodicals. It necessarily embraces pamphlets and leaflets. These indeed have been the historic weapons in the defense of liberty, as the pamphlets of Thomas Paine and others in our own history abundantly attest."

What, then, can be done to prevent castaway handbills from cluttering up city streets and bringing justified complaints from irate citizens? The obvious answer is to arrest the pedestrians who do the throwing, as well as those occasional distributors who resort to wholesale dumping of literature refused by passersby. Arrest is a rather drastic punishment for a minor offense of this sort. But a few well-timed arrests would have a disciplinary effect on those careless pedestrians who almost automatically grab and drop the printed matter thrust on them, rather than take the trouble to dodge or wave away importunate distributors.

The amount of litter resulting from the distribution of handbills is a pointed reminder that a great deal of money and effort spent in preparing and handing out such material is wasted. Indeed, it is open to question whether the irritation caused by the thrusting of publications on hurrying and harassed pedestrians does not more than offset the propaganda value of the messages so conveyed. A vigorous drive against the litterers would at least have the good effect of restricting street distribution of handbills and other publications to people who presumably intend to read them. And it would also assist the praiseworthy efforts of members of the police force to keep the city's streets free from rubbish without violating rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

Futility In Berlin

Mr. Churchill says that any withdrawal from Berlin would be appeasement on the model of Munich. The analogy is imperfect. At Munich the powers agreed to Nazi absorption of another country's soil. That was appeasement—the kind that made the powers accessory to a great and cumulative wrong. In Berlin the situation is entirely different. The former German capital (an unnatural capital, anyway) is merely the headquarters of a central administration for occupied Germany that no longer exists. The Western powers, having admitted the breakup, are preparing to set up a government in Trizonia or Western Germany under German auspices, with the capital at old Frankfurt. Even the municipal council with which the victorious powers administered Berlin has shut up shop. In the circumstances there is no reason in politics or economics for holding the tiny Western enclave within municipal Berlin. And, so far as strategy is concerned, there is less than none. Strategically the position is an island in a Soviet sea, so that there is nothing to gain in hanging on (as there was, of course, at Trieste in face of a similar push) and nothing to lose in quitting. Only one purpose is served in clinging to Berlin, viz., "face"; it would look as if a retreat were the result of Soviet pressure.

The situation, in other words, is almost as ridiculous as it is serious. What the six powers have done is to invite a joust (with 2½ million Germans the sufferers) over nothing, a struggle over nonexistent stakes. The error lay in not making either a last attempt to come to a new arrangement over Berlin or a statement of withdrawal when the Western powers announced the pact for a German government for western Germany. The French wanted the former course. But they were overruled. And, faced with Anglo-American decision, they agreed grudgingly to the new modus. Since this recognized the loss of Berlin's raison d'etre, why, then, didn't the six powers offer at the same time to quit Berlin, subject, of course, to guarantees, such as the withdrawal of those Germans who are working with the American administration. That would have given the initiative to the Western powers. Having neglected this obvious corollary, they are now in a box, as is evident in the confusion created in Paris, London and Washington over the squeeze play that the Russians are applying. Mr. Bevin insists on staying, Mr. Bidault wants to leave, and both of them are uncomfortable over the spectacle of our General Clay making and administering high policy for America, and, to a certain extent, the Allies.

To stay in Berlin means to embark on a most expensive plan of succoring Berlin by air. It is said with some confidence in Washington that if this aid is persisted in, then the Russians will relax their pincers. Possibly; the Russians, with subversion as their prime stock-in-trade, will doubtless shrink from force, though the likelihood of an incident that will cause an explosion, as the American police detention of Marshal Sokolovsky testified, cannot be minimized. This is admitted by Mr. Churchill himself. For what purpose is this risk being run? Simply that the Western powers shall themselves stand upon the order of their going, for there is no logic in keeping an outpost in Berlin with nothing to do, after having decided to establish a German government at Frankfurt. What is happening is the inevitable result of trying to superimpose a new policy on an old policy without liquidating the old. We hope that the realities rather than mere "face" will prevail as the guide of policy—that is to say—that statesmanship rather than bullheadedness will govern this provocative situation.

Cannonading Taber

Now that the great scramble at Philadelphia and the endurance contest which preceded it on Capitol Hill have both passed into history, it may not be amiss to look back at some of the events that were skipped over at the time out of sheer necessity. As we glance back at the Congressional Record dated Monday, June 21, for example, we note with interest the glee of Representative Clarence Cannon over the discomfiture of his friend, Representative John Taber. As chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and director of the antediluvian forces of that body, Mr. Taber had just suffered a severe drubbing. His "rash attempt to hamstring the Marshall Plan," to borrow Mr. Cannon's language, had been thwarted by an irate majority in Congress, and Mr. Taber was desperately in need of a shoulder to weep on. From his dear old friend, however, came only salt and vinegar to make his wounds the more painful.

Mr. Cannon accused the majority managers for the House on the European recovery appropriation (meaning chiefly Mr. Taber) of sabotaging the foreign aid program and of indulging in a "wild foot race" in an attempt to "escape from the trap in which they had snared themselves." Mr. Taber and his colleagues had clung to their scheme to have the ERP money spent in 15 months instead of 12, Mr. Cannon said, "like shipwrecked sailors to an empty barrel." Then they tried to fashion a smoke screen "to conceal the fact that they were yielding abjectly and completely." Finally, Mr. Taber et al had paid the "appalling price" of letting the President determine whether the recovery fund should be spent in 12 months "to extricate the House conferees from the consequences of their folly."

We admit that our interest in this tongue-lashing administered to one Congressman by another is somewhat personal. Last February we ventured to point out that Mr. Taber, along with some other committee chairmen, was "sadly out of step with the most vigorous and constructive elements in the Republican Party." Mr. Cannon, former Democratic chairman of the Appropriations Committee, denounced and distorted our editorial and flew to the defense of his Republican friend. Referring directly to Mr. Taber, whom he admitted to be oftener wrong than right, Mr. Cannon boomed: "There has been no more aggressive, vigorous, intelligent, constructive leadership upon the part of any committee chairman in either body in the years it has been my privilege to serve here."

It is admirable, of course, for a Congressman to admit his mistake when the "intelligent, constructive leadership" he has praised produces sabotage, ensnares itself, conceals its errors and abjectly surrenders. What we cannot understand is why it took Mr. Cannon 23 years in Congress to learn what has been common knowledge around Washington for at least a good part of that period.

Inflation Plank

With the BLS retail-price index at a new peak and every day bringing word of more price increases that will eventually be reflected in higher living costs, the problem of inflation control has become a major concern of the people. If the dreaded inflationary spiral should continue to whirl upward, the expected Republican victory in November might prove to be a prelude to repudiation of the next Administration by an outraged electorate. For voters do not stop to reason why when economic disaster overtakes them. Herbert Hoover was a political victim of a deflation for which he was not responsible and which he was unable to arrest. Similarly an inflationary boom followed by a disastrous price collapse within the next few years would be debited to the account of the party in power.

Since the beginning of this year, opinions as to price trends have shifted constantly. At the moment, however, fears of inflation are in the ascendant and current price developments lend emphasis to prophetical warnings. Consequently, the inflation plank of the Republican platform will attract an unusual amount of interest on the part of worried consumers asking what the next Administration is going to do to protect the purchasing power of the dollar from further declines. The answer, insofar as the plank is concerned, is not very enlightening or consoling. From its phrasing the inference is that the basic causes of inflation can be routed by fiscal measures; that is, by reducing the cost of Government through elimination of waste and through fiscal policies to provide increased incentives for production and thrift—in other words, a call for further tax reduction. Reduction of public debt is listed as another anti-inflation objective.

If these three objectives could be simultaneously pursued with a prospect of success, the arrest of inflation would undoubtedly be facilitated. But judging from the limited results of Republican economy drives and the magnitude of the obligations that this country has assumed, prospects for a substantial reduction in Government outlays are dim. Furthermore, the measure of tax reduction already obtained by the Eightieth Congress has just about put a period to debt reduction. There is still some margin for manipulation to dislodge Government debt obligations held by banks and shift them to the public. But the effect of such operations will not be great. Moreover, the Federal Reserve System has been denied the powers for which it asked in order to impose effective restraints on inflationary credit expansion.

Another suggestion in the plan for control of inflation that evokes memories of vanished hopes is stimulation of production. The only trouble here is that production is already at levels so high as to strain our facilities in manpower and materials. Yet prices are going up. The idea that more things make for lower prices is axiomatic in a competitive economy under ordinary conditions. However, with billions of surplus money left over from the war years, producer and consumer demands can and do boost prices even while production is expanding. And these higher prices lead to higher production costs, as well as higher living costs. In the period immediately following the war there was a disposition to discount the effect of rising production costs on the price level. Higher costs could be absorbed, it was said, with industry working at high capacity, without additions to prices. Up to a point that is true, but as the price spiral rises higher and higher, the production-cost aspects of pricing become prime factors in accelerating an inflation originally stemming from deficit financing. As costs of production mount, the demands for credit to finance business also increase and add to inflationary pressures.

There is no hint in the Republican inflation plank that these stimuli to price rises have been given any serious attention. Yet currently they are the forces giving impetus to inflation and creating fresh demands for wage increases to offset mounting living costs.

WHITE FOX IN THE SNOW

White fox, what secret do you know
As you rest here like a white shadow
On the white snow?
Beside you brittle branches make
Black curves against the afternoon.
What winter memories lie behind
The pointed smile, the restless face
Where the slant eyes belie the languid grace?
One paw is lifted, indolent and quiet,
But sentient for the silver flight.
The muzzle is upraised to the flakes that fall
To the long-heard, the never-ending call
Of the white trail where cold stars lie
Under the dark mirror of the night-sky.

Seamen's Exemption

Having reviewed the draft legislation which Congress passed over the weekend, I am not too sure that I still regard executive emergency powers as democracy's No. 1 dilemma. Rather, I am inclined to think that maybe minority rights have become top dog.

Speaking as a member of the majority, I only regret that the act has been so long in the making. However, I happen to belong to that minority, the former merchant seamen of World War II, which cannot condone the discriminatory flavor of the law as it stands.

Assuming, first, that our group is a minority, and, second, that the people of the Nation are sympathetic to minority rights, the question then evolves — is it the right of "reasonably qualified" merchant seamen to expect preferential consideration in solving the problem of defense manpower? I can't honestly feel that the failure of the Congress to include such a consideration, as it did in many other cases, is representative of the majority on the matter. If it is, then I shall be glad to hold up my end of our social contract.

But, alas, I'm only another axgrinder, for you see, I was four years away from school the first time I went, and now that I am about to finish I feel qualified for something a bit more stimulating than teen-age regimentation.

Low Interest Rates

We are proceeding to spend at least 15 billion dollars in the next few years and are frankly prepared to do whatever else may be necessary to protect our political and economic structure, which is founded on capitalism. And surely it is worth such defense, so much is it preferable to the alternative of dictatorship with its record of evils and failures. Yet we appear to be wholly without concern regarding the effect on that structure of the changing and unsettling conditions within itself.

If any one principle may be singled out as basic to the capitalistic structure, it is that money has a rental value, meaning that if John Jones elects to loan out part of his income for productive purposes instead of spending it for something he would like to have or would like to do, he is entitled to compensation. It has furthermore been recognized as vitally important to our economy that the inducement to John Jones to make such election be adequate.

Thus the rate of compensation accepted through the years as fair and practical has been approximately 1/15 of the money's full value. Actually and almost imperceptibly, this has declined within recent years to about 1/40 in real value where there is some risk and about 1/100 of the value where complete safety is supposed. Even the most prosperous corporations pay less than 6 per cent in dividends, though wage rates have increased upward of 100 per cent in the last decade and sales and administration salaries even more.

The causes for this alteration and its probable effect on our political as well as economic future would seem to be matters that call for more concerned thought than is being given them.

Marine Reserves

The Washington Post, which last year so arily dismissed the Marine Corp's primacy in the development of amphibious warfare, has evidently not lost its touch: in a story in your issue of June 22 detailing the desirability of enlisting in Organized Reserve components in order to beat the draft, you state, "The Marine Corps, which has no Reserve group as such."

Inasmuch as the Marine Corps does have a Reserve (both organized and volunteer) more than 100,000 strong, with organized units functioning, well up to strength, in approximately 100 cities (including Washington); inasmuch as the Marine Corps Reserve has been in existence since before World War II, and contributed approximately 700,000 marines, both officer and enlisted, to the corps during World War II; and inasmuch as Washington, D. C., has had one or more organized Marine Corps Reserve battalions ever since 1929 — this stumble by The Washington Post over its own feet appears inexcusable.

School Board Silence

Having attended for the first time an "open" meeting of Arlington's School Board, I find myself in a state of baffled bewilderment. This board—elected for the first time and thus responsible to the people who put them in office—refused point-blank to answer questions presented by these same people. The explanation given for this was that controversial subjects are handled only in "executive sessions" of the board.

I can understand that from the standpoint of the board, it would be practical to work in executive session. but, when the public feels that actions of the board are contrary to the public interest and requests an explanation, the public is entitled to one.

I feel very definitely that not reappointing Miss Smith, Miss Gravatte, Mrs. Bell and Mr. Kavalier to their previous positions is contrary to the public interest and the fact that there was no substantial change in salary is incidental. I still want to know why these veteran employes of Arlington's school system are being "reassigned" to positions of lower standing. Can anyone answer my question? NANCY C. FOSTER.

Legalized Gambling

If the sales tax for the District of Columbia should ever become law, each and every Congressman who votes in its favor will be guilty of one of the very same crimes that brought about the Revolutionary War: Imposing taxation without granting representation.

The people of Washington realize that a government must have funds if it is to function properly, but they also recognize that citizens of a democracy should have some voice in designating how these funds are to be obtained and how they are to be allocated.

Inasmuch as the city officials recognize that gambling is such a profitable enterprise in Washington and that a large budgetary deficit exists, why don't these officials and the members of the congressional committees of the District of Columbia work out a bill legalizing gambling in a moderate form, placing a heavy tax on the total profits received in this profession?

If this plan were to go into effect, a sales tax would not be necessary and the ever-present gambling problem would be greatly curtailed.

Four-Time Winner

H. E. Osann's letter of June 24 states that Shirley Povich was wrong when he called Jesse Owens the first triple winner in Olympic history. He cited the case of R. E. Kraenzlein who won four events at the 1900 Olympics in Paris, France. In an editor's note you implied that this was not substantiated by your references. However, in the 1948 World Almanac, pp. 850, 851, you will find Mr. Osann's claims are correct. If there is some reason why this was not included in Menke's Encyclopedia of Sports, I would appreciate learning of it.

Veterans' Education

I am a veteran now in my freshman year at one of the local universities. After my discharge from the Army and before I started college studies, I worked as a clerk in a downtown office.

Finding myself in the vicinity of my old job one afternoon, I ventured inside to say hello. I was greeted with smiles and several handshakes, until I passed the desk of a would be executive. I stopped to say hello, but the icy stare that greeted me froze the word in my throat. Instead of the customary smile and handshake, he said, I hope you're not fooling around up there at school, because indirectly I'm paying your way through school by paying my taxes." What got me was his serious manner.

This little episode started me wondering. Am I a leech for accepting "Uncle Sam's" generosity to further my education?

Georgia's Leadership

After more than three quarters of a century clinging to the principles that led her to secession from the union, Georgia is now trying through "liberal democratic leadership" to regain an educational, economic, financial and a social status that is honorable among the freedom loving States of this Commonwealth, a heritage rightly hers.

The late Gov. Eugene Talmadge, four times elected governor of Georgia, was probably the last vestige of antagonistic rule and race baiting leadership. As Margaret Mitchell wrote about Southern tr lition under the caption of Gone With the Wind, so its Civil War orators and statesmen like the Arabs are quietly folding up their tents in Georgia and are silently creeping away.

Georgia lost a great former governor, statesman and jurist in the recent death of Hon. Hugh Dorsey, but she will gain her place in the sun under the liberal leadership of such men as the present Governor Thompson, Ellis Arnall, Ralph McGill and Congressman James C. Davis.

The Rod Of Evil

TOTAL POWER: A FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY, by Edmund A. Walsh, S. J. (Doubleday, $5.)

This discussion of the central problem of political philosophy seems to be the fruit of Father Walsh's experiences as an adviser to the American legal staff at the Nuernberg Tribunal and in particular to his study of the geopolitical doctrines of the late Professor Haushofer; perhaps it also owes something to his earlier experiences in Russia at a time when the Bolsheviks were consolidating their power. The book suffers from a looseness of structure, as though it were comprised of a series of papers independently conceived and prepared, and also from the prolixity which grows out of the author's Corinthian style and his somewhat inordinate fondness for quotations and allusions. It is in short the sort of prose that is much more effective when heard than when read. All the same there is much in the book to reward the patient reader, and the chapters that Father Walsh devotes specifically to the problem of power are as clear and interesting an exposition of it as any that I know.

Father Walsh cites and rejects the famous proposition of Burckhardt that, "Power is of its nature evil, whoever wields it." Since the idea of force or coercion is implicit in all theories of civil government, the question of the origin and nature of political power is subordinate to the question of how power is to be exercised; in other words the relevant aspects of the problem are ethical rather than metaphysical. The urge to power, using the phrase in the broadest sense of desire for achievement or mastery of some sort, is, Father Walsh argues, universal among mankind. Power is exercised through a succession of choices which, if the power is not to be abused, must be guided by reason and by the recognition of what are good and evil means to the desired end. Although the proper means do not in every case exclude aggression, the desire for power is not always aggressive but may seek its ends through persuasion or even love. Nor is political power necessarily coercive. In times of tranquillity governments rely more upon the force of custom to assure obedience than upon the police. But custom, says Father Walsh, "implies many antecedent acts of choice and the presence of habits formed by repeated acquiescence." Such choices follow from the rational recognition of "the necessity of a controlling and directing power in any large aggregation of men." Thus, if I follow the argument, all governments, whatever their forms, are in this sense the choice of the peoples which are subject to them. This seems to suggest that the German imagination was in some sense an accessory before the fact to Hitler's rise to power; anyhow, in another chapter, Father Walsh strives to show how the German mind had been prepared for Hitler by a hundred years and more of subjective idealism. Among the particular villains thus brought to judgment are Fichte, Hegel, Friederich List, Nietzsche, Ludwig Jahn, Treitschke and Oswald Spengler. "There is not," says our author, "in Mein Kampf a single idea of any consequence which had not been advocated—and expressed in much better German—by the long line of precursors."

Father Walsh seems to hold that the geopolitical doctrine of Haushofer was the catalytic agent which, acting on the notions of German superiority and German historic destiny inculcated by the romantic philosophers, produced the monstrous program of conquest and extermination. Haushofer had taught that small nations have no longer any right to exist and that to Germans, by virture of their cultural mission, belonged by right to "the more extensive folk and cultural lands" outside Germany. In the Nazi logic Haushofer's dictum had its corollary in the systematic effort to destroy whole races by mass murder and sterilization. A good deal of Father Walsh's book is devoted to Haushofer's personal tragedy. He lived to realize, too late, the implication of his own teachings. His son, who was involved in the conspiracy against Hitler, spent his last days in prison writing a series of sonnets in which he described his approaching death as an act of atonement for the sins of his father, who had "set the demon free to roam throughout the world." Haushofer died by his own hand and his partly Jewish wife joined him in suicide.

Some intellectual preparation, then, is necessary to any revolution or violent transfer of power and authority. Father Walsh has reduced the process of revolution to an ingenious algebraic equasion, which, because of the narrowness of the column, I am unable to reproduce. However, among the various factors which it seems must combine to produce a situation in which a revolutionary minority may seize power is a certain degree of stupidity on the part of the ancien regime. The point perhaps is debatable; it might be hard, I suspect, to show that anything Louis XVI might have done, for example, would have made the course of the French Revolution otherwise than it was. But as far as the world revolution of the Nazis is concerned Father Walsh finds the fatal instance of stupidity in the acceptance by the Western Powers in 1936 of Hitler's reoccupation of the Rhineland.

Senate Democracy

A Communication

THE PERIODIC proposals designed to awaken the interest of the American people in day-to-day affairs of their Government by broadcasting or televising the legislative proceedings of Congress have never had much appeal for those of us in Washington who occasionally spend time in the galleries of the House and Senate.

Televising or broadcasting the speeches made to nearly empty chambers for the record would be dull fare for the listener attuned to the fast moving pace of Fred Allen or Jack Benny, to say nothing of the daily climaxes of the soap opera. Moreover, one has to know a good deal about the legislative process to comprehend what is actually taking place on the floor. And we should all know that most significant congressional business is transacted elsewhere. (It is, of course, possible that the recording technique of presenting only the livelier exchanges might be worked out.)

Nevertheless, on occasion there are moments of such great dramatic quality on the floors of both chambers which make one wish that a more effective means of communcation than the Congressional Record and press reports were available to portray the story to the American people.

SUCH AN incident took place in the Senate last Saturday, June 20. I regret that The Washington Post did not tell the story adequately. Were it not for sheer chance (the presence of Senator Pepper at a banquet for the retiring Federal Comunications Commissioner Clifford Durr) I would never have had occasion to review the Congressional Record (pp 9168-9171) for the complete story—which revealed democracy at its best, with men fighting for the rights of those with whom they disagree completely.

I am referring to the last stage of the long Senate debate on the draft bill. After Senator Taylor had been ruled out of order in reading a telegram from a supporter whose language was deemed unfitting to the dignity of the Senate, the presiding officer, Senator Ives of New York, appointed the conference committee.

There followed a very brief interlude during which a roll call vote was taken on extending the Atomic Energy Commissioners' terms; the conference committee reappeared and Senator Gurney moved the adoption of the conference report. Despite the very vocal efforts of Senators Pepper and Taylor to gain the floor, the presiding officer went ahead to put the question, call for a vote, and announce that the report was agreed to.

There is only one word I know to describe the heavy-handed action by the presiding officer—this was a "railroad." It is a tribute to the fairness of the men on both sides of the aisle that they recognized the unfairness of the chairman and spoke out against it.

SENATOR MORSE was first to get the floor:

"Mr. President, I rise to a point of order. I am thoroughly opposed to the filibuster which has been proceeding, but there is no question of the fact that the Senator from Idaho (Mr. Taylor) and the Senator from Florida (Mr. Pepper) were on the floor asking recognition long before the Chair put the question. I want to raise a point of order and ask for a ruling to set aside the Chair's ruling on the vote just announced by the Chair so that either the Senator from Florida or the Senator from Idaho can be recognized for remarks on the conference report. Important as passage of the conference report is, we cannot as individual Senators deny two Senators the right to be recognized by the Chair when they were so obviously, to the sense of everyone on the floor, seeking to be recognized before the vote was taken.

"I raise a point of order as to whether the ruling of the Chair should stand."

Senator Donnell went even further:

"I am heartily in favor of the position taken by the Senator from Oregon, but I do not raise my point of order upon a mere parliamentary inquiry. I make the point of order at this time with reference to the Senator from Idaho and the Senator from Florida, respectively, for to my own personal knowledge I could see them and could hear them demanding recognition. In the sense of pride and in the sense of law I make the point of order—not a parliamentary inquiry—that the result of the vote was invalidly announced by the presiding officer."

Then Senator Barkley:

"Mr. President, under the rules of the Senate the Chair undoubtedly has a discretion as to whom he shall recognize when a number of Senators are seeking recognition, but I doubt very much whether that discretion gives the Chair the right to exercise it by refusing to recognize any Senator who is seeking recognition. For that reason, and for the sake of future interpretation, parliamentary or otherwise, to any Senator who seeks to delay a vote on the matter, I doubt whether the Chair could refuse to recognize either one of the Senators. They were both seeking recognition. I hope that the Chair, in all fairness to himself and to the Senate, will hold that, notwithstanding the fact that he declared the conference report agreed to, one of the Senators was entitled to recognition."

And Senator Taft:

"Mr. President, I suggest that since there are so many Senators who feel that the Chair overooked a request for recognition, if a majority think the Chair was incorrect, I suggest a unanimous-consent request that the ruling of the Chair be vacated and that the Senator from Florida be permitted to proceed."

AFTER a brief discussion of how to best deal with the parliamentary aspects of the situation, the presiding officer agreed with Senator Donnell and reversed his order, making the results of the vote invalid and again placing the Senate in the position of considering the motion to adopt the conference report. The Chair then recognized and apologized to Senator Pepper and a few minutes later recognized and apologized to Senator Taylor.

It must be realized that in giving Senator Taylor the floor, the Senate had reason to believe that he was prepared to continue the filibuster. But the majority of the Senate showed that they prized democratic procedure more than they valued a few hours of sleep.

And their faith was rewarded, for Senator Taylor chose to summarize his position both on the draft and on the preceding exhibition of decent play by speaking briefly as follows:

"MR. PRESIDENT, as I said a while ago I think I could have held forth here indefinitely, but I deeply appreciate what has just taken place here, the evidence of devotion to the principles of democracy displayed by a majority of the Senators present at least. I have sincerely felt that this draft bill was jeopardizing our future as a democratic free people. I have disliked very much having to play the role I have indulged in during the night, talking at length. I disliked the inconvenience and discomfort that I have caused to the members of the Senate. I feel that so long as the Senators have the regard for democratic procedures and principles which was displayed here a while ago this country is safe although there will be other Senators elected later whose election will be influenced more greatly by the fact that the military has become strong and I am afraid that we will permit the military to become even stronger to the point where our democratic freedoms will be seriously jeopardized.

"Nevertheless, I do not want to inconvenience the Senate further, and inasmuch as the members of the Senate have seen fit to come to my rescue when I felt that I was being unfairly treated—in spite of the fact that I have treated them sort of rough during the past several hours, I appreciate what they did, and I am going to take my seat, and just urge the gentlemen present, whether as Senators or after they have retired from the Senate, to keep a close watch on the military establishment of this country, and be not afraid, should it become all-powerful, to oppose it and try to get it back under control, because I am afraid that is what we are headed toward in this country.

"I want again to express my appreciation to the Senators who spoke up in behalf of the principles of unlimited debate in the Senate, which are basic in our rules, in spite of the fact that in doing so they were laying themselves open to further torture probably by having to listen to further extended remarks.

"So with those statements, Mr. President, I am going to take my seat."

I submit that this incident was both newsworthy and significant, deserving far more attention than it received. Even in America of late it is not every day that both the majority and minority exercise such consideration for the rights of one another. Both used restraint and acted with a sense of fair play—if we are to continue as a free society such characteristics must be conserved. Is it not the responsibility of a free press to publicize such incidents which carry honor enough for all?

Rio Grande Flood Nears Hidalgo, Texas

Laredo, Tex., June 27 (U.P.).—Flood waters of the Rio Grande rolled through the arid wide open spaces of southwest Texas today, as towns along the river's lower reaches braced for a midweek onslaught of high water.

The flood in the lower Rio Grande Valley was expected to reach Hidalgo tomorrow.

In its upper reaches the Rio Grande left a trail of heavy property damage at Laredo, Del Rio and Eagle Pass, and at least one fatality was reported.

The river crested at Laredo yesterday, rising 5 feet above the 40-foot-high International Bridge. Mexico-bound tourists were stranded. Then the flood waters surged through relatively uninhabited areas.

The United States Weather Bureau said the worst of the flood appeared to be over.

Fire Out After 39 Hours

Louisville, Ky., June 27 (A.P.).—Firemen late today put out after 39 hours the last of a series of fires, started by explosions, which caused an unofficially estimated $500,000 damage and injured 20 persons slightly at the Aetna Oil Co.'s refinery and storage area here.

Wallace Aims To Set People Of U. S. 'Free'

Manchester, N. H., June 27 (A.P.).—Presidential candidate Henry A. Wallace said today the major task of his new party is to "set Americans free to control their own destiny in a world of peace and international brotherhood."

In an address before 200 delegates to the founding convention of the New Hampshire Progressive Party, he said:

"It can be done, for the chain that binds people today is forged from the base metal of concealment, distortion and lies.

"The fact that no existing political party is attempting to carry out a program to set the people free is justification for forming the new party.

"Government could and ought to step in and lower prices, tax excessive profits, increase wages and develop a long-range plan for raising the living standards of the people.

"But you know as well as I do that such a program is anathema to the old parties and big business."

The convention named Mrs. Irma C. Otto, 51, Center Sandwich tearoom proprietor, as its candidate for Governor. She came to New Hampshire from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where she operated a farm with her husband.

For its United States Senate candidate, the convention nominated Dr. John G. Rideout, University of New Hampshire English professor. Alexander Karanikas, Goffstown lecturer, and Harold Horne of Berlin, N. H., G. I. student at U. N. H were nominated from two Congressional districts

1800 Job Printers Vote to End Chicago Dispute

Chicago, June 27 (A.P.).—A spokesman for Local 16, International Typographical Union (AFL), said members voted more than "4 to 1" today to approve a new wage scale proposal made by the Franklin Association, representing Chicago's major printing establishments.

About 1800 union printers have not been working in 48 member shops since last March 2, in what the union has called a lockout and the employers termed a strike.

Those who voted today are not the printers on strike against the city's newspapers.

The union spokesman, who declined to permit the use of his name, said the membership voted "about 1300 to 300" to accept a weekly wage increase of $11.89 and other benefits under an 18-month contract. He said the printers will start to return to work Monday.

Fight Looms For Lewis on Union Clause

President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers may have to go to court to defend the union shop clause in his 1948 soft coal contract, it was disclosed yesterday.

Industry officials revealed that United States Steel Corp. and nine other operators of "captive" coal mines are being polled on whether unfair labor practice charges should be filed against Lewis with the National Labor Relations Board. They expect a decision by Wednesday.

Law Violation Seen

The companies refused to sign the wage contract which Lewis concluded last week with the rest of the industry. They maintained that its union shop clause is a violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

The clause provided that "all employes shall be, or become, members of the United Mine Workers" except in certain classifications.

The Taft-Hartley law bans the union shop until at least 51 per cent of the employes vote for it in a NLRB election. And it is an unfair labor practice to try to force an employer to sign such an agreement against his wishes.

The gimmick is that Lewis can't petition the NLRB for an election, although there is little or no doubt that his UMW members would vote overwhelmingly for the union shop.

To obtain an election, the mine boss would have to file the non-Communist affidavit required by the Taft-Hartley law. He has refused to do so on grounds of principle.

Harry M. Moses, chief negotiator for United States Steel and the other "captive" mine owners, said his companies are willing to go along with the wage increases granted by other operators, but will not "knowingly or consciously" defy the Federal laws.

Scientist Says He Gave A-Bomb To U. S. in 1941

Lisbon, Portugal, June 27 (A.P.).—A Portuguese scientist declared today he invented an atomic bomb and gave the plans for it to the United States in 1941.

The scientist, Artur de Albuquerque, told newsmen he had handed the plans to the United States "through the military attache at Lisbon, Col. (Robert A.) Solborg."

"My French assistant, Pierre Joseph du Pont, carried out the first practical experiments in the Pyrenees," Albuquerque added, "exploding a tiny bomb that provoked a small earth tremor."

Albuquerque made the statement after being shown a March 23 copy of the Rio de Janeiro newspaper Vanguarda crediting him with inventing the bomb.

"I wanted to keep it secret," he said.

"The Symbol of Friendly Banking"

Surplus May Run Close to 8 Billion

By The Associated Press

The budget surplus Wednesday—the end of the fiscal year—will set a vast new record. It may run close to eight billion dollars. The previous high was $1,155,000,000 of 21 years ago.

But it will just be a figure on paper.

Most of the money itself—$8,683,000,000—already has been used to lower the Federal debt to about $251,600,000,000, an analysis of Treasury records showed yesterday.

The rest, about $1,400,000,000, has gone into the Treasury's cash coffers, swelling its cash balance (largely kept in banks over the country) to $4,800,000,000.

The surplus reflects the excess of Government income over spending.

Funds Transfer Provided

Technically, three billion dollars will be cut out of this year's surplus and in effect transferred to next year when President Truman signs the foreign aid appropriations bill, into which Congress wrote a provision for the transfer.

This provision requires that three million dollars of the money that actually is to be paid out for recovery abroad in the 12 months beginning July 1 be charged as an "expense" in this fiscal year's budget, upping the book figure on spending this year by three billion dollars and reducing the surplus a like amount.

Purpose of the bookkeeping shift is to bolster next fiscal year's budget, which otherwise might show a deficit. This will be done at the expense of the current year's surplus. The latter, even if cut three billion dollars, will still be more than double the old record.

Surplus Used on Debt

The Treasury has been using surplus money for debt retirement from time to time as the cash piled in.

It always keeps at least $2,500,000,000 in the cash balance to be on the safe side. Its expenses will be running above 40 billion dollars in the next 12 months and there is a vast amount of savings bonds and other securities that could be turned in for cash at any time.

The Treasury's newest data show there was a momentary budget surplus of $8,750,000,000 with just one week to go in the fiscal year.

That was over one billion dollars higher than the $7,482,000,000 surplus President Truman has predicted would be achieved at the end of the year June 30.

Heavy Year-End Expenses

But heavy year-end expenses, including about 700 million dollars in interest on the debt, are now expected to reduce the final surplus for the 12 months ending Wednesday to around $7,800,000,000—well over the President's estimate despite the income tax cut, which he didn't take into account.

Principal reason for the higher surplus is the lag in spending under the $37,727,000,000 Mr. Truman estimated it would total.

Folger Library

Director Outlines His Plans

Wright

Despite a long record of scholarly achievements and an intense interest in Elizabethan drama, Dr. Louis B. Wright, new director of the Folger Shakespeare Library, is neither a long-haired professor nor a frustrated mane-shaking Shakespearean actor.

In fact, his doctoral thesis at the University of North Carolina was a study of the vaudeville elements in Elizabethan drama. That was in 1926, but he still believes that Shakespeare's contemporaries loved slapstick as much as any modern American who appreciates belly-laughs in a show.

Dr. Wright, who comes to his job from 17 years on the permanent research group of the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery at San Marino, Calif., plans to make the Folger Library more useful and more accessible, as well as more generally known to the public than it is now.

Shakespeare Play Planned

Though the library will continue to be a place of research for graduate scholars rather than undergraduates, the new director is anxious to develop closer relations between the colleges and the institution which he will direct beginning July 1.

For a starter, he is making arrangements to have the student player's group at Amherst College, whose trustees administer the Folger Library, come to Washington to give a Shakespeare play in the library's famous Shakespeare Theater.

To bring more public attention to the famous library, Dr. Wright promises to have "lively and significant exhibits for the general public" there. He may even modify the rather forbidding guard system at the building at 201 East Capitol st.

The library is already the "first in the world" for Shakespearean material, according to Dr. Wright, and he hopes to make it "the foremost library in the world for the study of English civilization"—he dislikes the word "culture"—"in the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries."

Period of English Power

This was the period which brought world power to England, he pointed out, and which provides the background for the colonization of America and its civilization.

"Many people don't realize the great opportunity here for the study of English history, both literary and social, aside from the material on Shakespeare," said Dr. Wright as he discussed his plans for the library. "A careful new appraisal of English civilization of the time when patterns for America were being established appears important for a knowledge of American life."

Through his own study and research in the Elizabethan period, he gained an interest in American colonial history, particularly that of Virginia.

"You might say I followed the English colonists over to this country as they transferred their civilization."

Book on Colonial History

The enthusiasm for colonial history led to a recent book, "The Atlantic Frontier," which won the new director a gold medal award from the Commonwealth Club of California and which will be published this summer in England under the title, "The Colonial History of North America."

He has a number of other works to his credit, mostly on the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries in England. On his way East, he picked up three honorary degrees—at Princeton on June 15, at Northwestern on June 16 and at Amherst on June 20—to add to four previously earned.

A native of South Carolina, Dr. Wright is 49. He will be joined later by Mrs. Wright and their son at their new home, 2915 Foxhall rd. nw. One regret he had in leaving California was that he had worked up a fine group of companions for fishing trips in the High Sierras.

Machinegun-Armed Gang Eludes 100 Police in Manhunt

Chicago, June 27 (AP).—A gang of robbers armed with machineguns shot two policemen in a running chase late yesterday and then eluded more than 100 officers in an all-night manhunt around a wooded quarry.

Tracking dogs and 11 airplanes aided in the hunt. The bandits got away after they held up an alleged handbook near Western Springs, a suburb.

Hundreds of spectators hampered the search around the quarry into which it was at first believed the robbers had fled. Searchlights lit up the errie scene, an old quarry about two miles square which is filled with ravines, wooded tracts and swamps, and is bordered by steep walls.

Follow Tracks to River

After dawn, officers followed tracks from the gang's abandoned automobile to the banks of the Des Plaines River, about a half mile south. There they found three raincoats. One contained several rolls of coins. From the river they fished out a bank bag filled with $1000 in bills, a sawed-off shotgun, a carbine rifle, two .45-caliber automatic pistols and 18 or 20 clips of machinegun cartridges.

Police also fished a machinegun from the river.

Searchers believed the gang waded the river.

A trainman told police he saw three board an Indiana Harbor Belt Line freight train late yesterday near the quarry. He saw the three men leap off in Blue Island, another suburb south of the quarry.

Police Chief Clarence J. Buehl of Western Springs said the gunplay started about 5 p. m. (EST) yesterday when the bandits stopped their automobile in front of the alleged handbook cottage.

One gunman shot the lock off the rear door and the gang rushed inside. They robbed the cashier's cage and the poker table and fled.

A small girl spotted the armed men, ran to a gas station and the owner alerted police.

Sergt. Charles Peterson, alone in a squad car, answered the alarm. As he alighted, a burst of machinegun fire sent him sprawling, gravely wounded in the abdomen.

The gunmen were spotted speeding through LaGrange by Sergt. Howard Heinen and Lieut. Joseph Glegg of the LaGrange force, each driving a police car. The bandits outdistanced Sergeant Heinen but Lieutenant Glegg drew near them. One robber knocked a hole in the rear window of the bandit car and sprayed Glegg's auto with machinegun bullets. One glazed Glegg's arm, but he was not seriously hurt. He stopped and the gunmen sped on.

Almost a score of squad cars had joined the chase by this time. The robbers turned off the highway onto a dirt road, drove to the quarry, and abandoned their car.

A cordon of police was thrown around the wooded area. The planes, summoned from the Glenview Naval Air Station, circled the area in search of the men. Tracking dogs were given the scent of two hats found in the bandit car, and then were led into the quarry.

Heavily armed policemen searched the quarry, but no trace of the men was seen.

One on the Aisle—

Italian Farm Life Long on L'Amore

By Richard L. Coe

FARM LIFE has beguiled the downtown screens of late.

"Scudda Hoo! Scudda Hay!" and "Green Grass of Wyoming" have looked at the American countryside through the eyes of youthful romance and loving Technicolor. "Farrebique," now in its showings at the Dupont, details with superb effect the four seasons on a French farm.

Now the Hippodrome comes up with a study of some folk on an Italian farm in "Furia," which does not necessarily title the passions that surge through its characters' lustful yearnings but is specifically the name of a horse that has its role in the story. It is not, I regret to report, a very good picture. Technically it is poor and it's got all the subtlety of a circus poster.

The story resembles a potpourri of opera libretti—with no distinguishing music to accompany its bedevilments of the flesh. The immensely attractive second wife of a livestock farmer has more than a yen for the handsome groom of her husband's horses. When her jealous husband almost catches the lady in the groom's room of a midnight, her stepdaughter saves her father's anger by appearing to be the object of the groom's affections. He, in gratitude, marries this convent-bred lass and grows, to her happiness, to become a loving husband.

The Lady Won't Forget

All this would be quite well except that the stepmother's passion has by no means died out. That creature, confident of her former lover's weaknesses, conspires to win him back and, through her husband's fortuitous death in an accident (which is where the horse "Furia" comes in), she manages to control the estate. All this while one of those minor figures in the establishment has been casting HIS lustful eyes on the lady.

I wouldn't go so far as to say that this report of doings on an Italian farm has a nationalistic quality one might ascribe to the quite different tones of the other farm pictures. It's much too hot for that sort of thing. But on what might be termed reasonably good authority, I can say that this story of the passion of lust does mirror the respect for l'amore with which the Italian peasant is traditionally imbued.

The behavior of these farm folk is the subject of a round dozen of Italian operas. And in reporting their behavior Script Writer Goffredo Alessandrini has been astonishingly frank about what he has shown on the screen. You never have any doubts about who has a yen for whom and why. The cast enters into the thing with zest and the English subtitles are adequate; in fact, you hardly need any subtitles.

But the proof that it is less than a distinguished Italian film lies in one's awareness of "Furia's" technical imperfections. The limitations which "Open City," "Shoe Shine" and "To Live in Peace" turned to realistic advantage, remain simply imperfections.

British Troops Set For Dock Strike

13 Cents Rejected

Bendix Strike Set Despite Boost Offer

South Bend, June 27 (AP).—CIO workers in the big Bendix Aviation Corp. plant here voted today to go ahead with a strike in spite of a wage offer accepted by the United Auto Workers Council in New York.

Robert J. Mahoney, Local 9 president of UAW, said his group voted unanimously in a mass meeting today to reject the company offer of a 13-cent hourly wage boost. The decision to strike was made last night.

The council also agreed last night on an extra half-cent raise for workers in South Bend and Detroit. But Mahoney said the South Bend local is still demanding a wholesale rerating of jobs in the plant here to "correct inequities" among individual workers.

He said the overall wage scale is not a major issue in the South Bend dispute.

Pickets remained outside the South Bend plant, which employs about 7300 workers and is the largest in the Bendix chain. It manufactures brakes, carburetors and other parts for automobiles and airplanes. Other Bendix plants are in Detroit, Elmira, N. Y., Teterboro, N. J., and North Hollywood, Calif.

'No Contract—No Work' Policy Approved

Chicago, June 27 (AP).—CIO United Farm Equipment Workers at a mass meeting today approved the union's "no contract-no work" policy in negotiations with the International Harvester Co.

The union's contract with the company expires at midnight Monday after a 30-day extension. Representatives of the two groups continued negotiations today in the Congress Hotel in an attempt to reach a new agreement.

A CIO spokesman said the mass meeting voted to reject any compromise settlement and to insist upon renewal of the last contract without changes which he said the company has proposed. The union already has accepted an 11 cent hourly wage increase proposed by the company.

London, June 27 (U.P.).—Fifteen thousand British troops were reported standing by today to break the 14-day-old London waterfront strike which Prime Minister Clement Attlee has branded as "Communist mischief."

Military units were expected to begin moving strike-bound cargo tomorrow morning unless the 20,000 striking workers return to their jobs.

Union officials made final appeals to the strikers during a mass meeting today.

Some 2000 strikers voted today on a resolution to return to work. The chairman said the resolution had been approved, but his ruling was hotly contested.

The real showdown will come tomorrow morning. Unless enough dockers show up to handle 104 idle ships along the 63 miles of London docks, the government is prepared to move in.

The strike was called two weeks ago after 11 dockers were fined nearly two weeks' pay for refusing to handle dirty cargo of zinc oxide without extra compensation. The Sunday Graphic estimated today the walkout cost Britain's export program about 56 million dollars.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee told 30,000 Lincolnshire agriculture workers at Skegness that the dock strike is contrary to the principles of trade unionism.

"The Communists here as elsewhere are making mischief which is not in the interest of the workers as a whole," he said.

Anglican Bishops Meet July 1; Church Doctrine Changes Seen

London, June 27 (AP).—For the first time in 18 years, Anglican bishops will meet here July 1 to decide if Church of England doctrine needs changing in the light of new world conditions and social thought.

Their recommendations will affect the religious life of some 50,000,000 persons throughout the world.

The meeting is to attract the 329 bishops of the Church of England and the Protestant Episcopal Church in England, the United States, Canada, Eire, India, South America, China, Africa and Japan. Officially it is called the Lambeth Conference, from the Lambeth Palace, London home of the Archbishop of Canterbury, where all sessions will be held.

The general theme will be "God in His World and in His Church." Marriage discipline within the church and the relation between baptism and confirmation are likely topics.

Previous Lambeth conferences have been closed. A ruling is expected at the first session on open meetings.

The conference will end August 8 and a report will be issued. Conference recommendations are not binding on constituent churches, but are "simply advisory or consultative."

Lockheed Fighter, In Production, Does 600 Miles

By The Associated Press

A new Lockheed Shooting Star with a more powerful Allison turbo-jet engine giving it a speed of 600 miles an hour is in production, the Air Force said yesterday.

The new fighter is the F-80C, whose new engine, the J 33-23, has a takeoff rating of 4600 pounds thrust. The plane has a higher climb rate than the F-80B, the previous model of the Shooting Star series, the Air Force said.

"Exact performance figures" of the new model were withheld.

Six Air Force fighter groups, two overseas, are equipped with Shooting Stars, the Air Force reported.

Taber Claims Congress Cut Truman's Budget 2¾ Billion

By The Associated Press

Congress saved $2,741,481,291 in lopping off money from President Truman's 1948 budget requests, Representative Taber of New York, figured yesterday.

The Appropriations Committee chairman blasted the executive branch of the Government as being in a "demoralized condition." His statement blamed Mr. Truman for the frantic last-minute labors of Congress.

"Everywhere there is complete confusion and inefficiency," Taber declared, referring to the executive department.

"President Truman—evidently to prove to the country the total incompetence of his Administration—failed to present to the Congress the major budget requests at the opening of Congress in January as the law requires, and as has been the practice for the past 28 years," Taber said.

Taber said the GOP Congress reduced the President's budget this year from $35,425,246,222 to $32,683,763,930.

New Overtime Deadline Postponed

By The Associated Press

Enforcement of a new interpretation of the Fair Labor Standards Act, necessitated by the Supreme Court's overtime pay decision of June 7, will not go into effect until September 15.

This was announced yesterday by William R. McComb, administrator of the Labor Department's wage and hour division. Previously the new enforcement was scheduled to begin July 1.

The Supreme Court ruled that an employer must include premium pay for night and other odd-hour work in figuring a worker's average pay to determine overtime rates. This was in a longshoremen's case; there have been conflicting opinions as to the effect of the decision on shipping and other industries.

Wage-Hour Administrator McComb said yesterday, in ordering the postponement, more time is needed for management and labor to bring "union agreements and employer practices into accord with the court's findings."

McComb said he expected soon to announce the principles he will follow in enforcement of his position he outlined on June 11.

11 Youths Held On New York Rape Charge

New York, June 27 (U.P.).—A gang of 11 youths, 15 to 20 years old, attacked a strolling couple on the East River Drive early today and took turns raping the woman while her companion watched helplessly, police reported.

Police said Mrs. Ilso Kramer, 36, and Herman Graulich, 49, had been walking in the cool night air beside the East River. They sat down on a bench, their backs to the drive, about 3:30 a. m.

They told police the youths slipped up quietly from behind, hit Graulich on the head and seized Mrs. Kramer. While two of the gang guarded the nearly unconscious man the others stripped all the clothes from Mrs. Kramer and threw them into the river, she told police.

Ignoring her screams and struggles, the youths attacked her in turn, police were told.

Mrs. Kramer's screams aroused a barge captain, who called police. They captured 11 suspects.

Mrs. Kramer said she was a housewife, separated from her husband.

Graulich, listed as unemployed, was not seriously injured.

The 11 youths were arraigned before a magistrate and held under $1000 bail each pending hearing Wednesday on charges of rape.

Takes the UMp out of Bumps

BY and large, our engineers are a pretty hard-working lot — but they like to take it easy when they travel.

So it was no surprise that when it came to putting comfort in this 1948 Buick, they laid it on in double measure.

Several things, of course, gave them something of a head start. Husky frames, ample roadweight, the ride-steadying torque-tube drive — things like that.

Also, they had the particular magic of Quadruflex springing to work with.

Putting a gentle coil spring on each wheel, this Buick-developed springing system irons out the differences you so often feel between front- and back-seat riding qualities and gives a ride that's level as an honest look.

Just the same, that wasn't enough for our engineers. They wanted to take the "ump!" out of bumps completely!

As a result, every Buick in our 1948 line rides on lower-than-usual tire pressures.

In some models it gets as low as 22 pounds, which means a good fat cushion of air spreading a blanket of comfort over every mile.

In all models, rims are wider than usual — sidewalls are straighter and more vertical. This gives them a bracing action against sidesway and swerve — with the result that you have better control on curves and sharp turns.

The net is that next to Dynaflow Drive* Buick's ride is probably the hottest topic of conversation in the industry.

And every Buick model has it — which means that if you, too, would like to take the ump out of bumps, better see your Buick dealer.

He'll take your order whether or not you have a car to trade.

*Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.

Nats Win Opener, 5-2; Lose Nightcap to Tribe, 4-1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

IF THE NEW YORK GIANTS do not win the National League pennant, at least Buck Newsom disclaims all responsibility for their failure. Mr. Newsom, who last week was served with his unconditional release by the Giants, immediately developed an unconditional scorn for the Giants' strategy.

POVICH

Newsom's offer to pitch the Giants to a pennant last spring was accepted by the New York club which found him unattached and job-hunting in Florida and he got a tidy sum for signing plus a nice salary. But after two months, Manager Mel Ott was disenchanted with the theory that his club could ride into the pennant on the strength of Newsom's pitching, and Bobo finds himself unattached again.

On the same day, the Giants also cut loose another ancient pitching figure, Thornton Lee, and brought up Monte Kennedy from their Milwaukee farm. They were still one under the 25-player limit and when President Horace Stoneham called a special press conference the next morning there was high speculation that the Giants had made a salubrious player purchase of some sort.

"All they did was announce the Giants had bought more parking space for the customers next to the Polo Grounds," said Newsom sadly. "It's the first time I was ever cut off a roster to make room for a parking lot."

NEWSOM'S RECORD with the Giants was neither particularly good nor particularly bad. In his last three weeks with the club, Ott started him only once. "I'm not a good pitcher with 18 days rest between starts, and neither is anybody else," said Bobo. "They weren't making many runs off me, I was just making too much money."

As Newsom tells it, his two months with the Giants, counting the chunk he got for signing, brought him $17,000 "and that's more than I made in any full season in my first five years in the majors. I was too high priced for 'em. They weren't pitching me and they didn't want me warming the bench at that price. The front office must have stepped in and made up Ott's mind for him."

The least thing the Giants could afford to do, says Bobo, is to get rid of pitching. "That kind of strategy will put 'em in the second division," he says. "They brought up that young fellow Kennedy and the first time he poked his nose in there in a starting job he was belted for four runs in the first inning.

BOBO IS PROUD of his ability as a wage earner and he did make $40,000 with the Tigers one season when he was working for the generous Walter O. Briggs and winning 20 games. After he got his release from Connie Mack a couple of years ago, losing more games than he won for the A's, he wangled a job with Clark Griffith as the highest paid man on Griffith's club.

He doesn't work cheaply, he always wants it to be known. Several years back, during the first of his four terms with the Nats, this bureau once referred to Newsom as "The $12,500-a-year pitcher who has lost his last two starts." He got me aside later and said I was underrating him.

"I wouldn't pitch for any club for $12,500," he said. "I've been getting big dough for two years now, so get that straight." The next day I got it straight all right—from the front office. Newsom was right. He wasn't working for $12,500. The contract he signed called for $11,000.

A JOB-HUNTING ROLE is nothing new for Newsom. He's been with eight major league clubs at different points of his career. Right now he's considering joining up with the Braves, who were leading the National League yesterday. The Braves may not be considering Newsom, but that doesn't necessarily make much difference. Salesman Newsom has a better than fair average of winding up with the club he wants to play with.

He'd take a job with the Red Sox, too, but that's a slim hope for Newsom. Joe McCarthy is one of the managers who never cottoned to Bobo. With the Yankees he resisted all of Newsom's attempts to get himself traded to New York, and at Boston he has hauled in the welcome mat also.

At one point last winter after Bucky Harris turned Newsom loose, he offered himself to Cleveland. Owner Bill Veeck was interested but Manager Lou Boudreau wasn't and said so. And Newsom sassed him back, so Cleveland is out as a port of call for Bobo. The chances are at this point that Newsom is Washington-minded again. In past years when Griffith has over-paid him as a pitcher, he's gotten it back at pinochle.

San Diego, Calif., June 27 (AP). Zoe Ann Olsen of Oakland, Calif., today captured the three-meter springboard diving championship for the third year in a row.

Featuring the final day of the Women's National outdoor swimming and diving championships—an event this year that serves as a last major tuneup tor the Olympic team trials next month at Detroit—the little 17-year-old blonde outscored the finest field of rivals in the Nation.

Second in a surprise finish was Patti Elsener of San Francisco's Crystal Plunge, with 114.98 points.

National tower diving Champion Vicki Manolo Draves of Los Angeles Athletic Club was third. Fourth went to Marjorie Gestring of the Los Angeles A. C.

Jeanne Wilson of Chicago dethroned defending Champion Nancy Merki Lees of Portland, Oreg., in the 100-meter breast stroke.

Previously Miss Curtis had wrapped up the 100 and 400-meter free style races and anchored the 800-meter relay team to victory.

Team totals: San Francisco's Crystal Plunge, 61. Los Angeles AC, 52, Oakland's Athens AC, 24; Multnomah of Portland, 20; Lake Shore of Chicago, 10, Pasadena AC, 2, and Washington AC, 1.

Seeded second was Gilbert Bogley, Washington's London School standout, who went to the finals last year with Buddy Behrens, 1947 champion from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The second-place A's have now extended their newest winning streak to seven straight victories.

Scheib and Fowler both pitched the distance for the A's who continued to make cousins out of the Chicagoans with a record of eight decisions in nine games.

Demaret, Hogan Win

Toledo, Ohio, June 27 (AP).—Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret won the Inverness four-ball matches by the greatest margin in the classic's 11-year history today, and picked up a $3500 check for four days of play against 14 other play-for-pay hot-shots.

The two transplanted Texans actually wrapped up the event in yesterday's two rounds when they shot a pair of 60s, 22 under par for the 36 holes, to romp out front by a country mile.

In today's matches, they coasted to an all-even match with Clayton Heafner and Herman Keiser and then dropped a one-down decision to Chick Harbert and Vic Ghezzi, who finished second and won $1700.

Hogan and Demaret went to the last of the 126 holes before missing par, and that lone lapse cost them their only defeat of the seven matches. Each took a five on the home hole, while Harbert-Ghezzi go down in par figures to finish with a plus-six rating, 10 back of the leaders.

Here's how the eight teams finished, showing their winnings, strokes under par for 126 holes, birdies, scores, and their final rating on the carry-over score system.

Teams	Won	Par	Birdies	Rating
Hogan-Demaret	$3500	51	52	+16

Phils' Daffy Baserunning Match for That of Cubs

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 27.—Daffy base running was the order of the day in today's doubleheader between the Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs.

Gene Mauch and Eddie Waitkus of the Cubs took part in some weird maneuvering around the base paths in the first game, but their antics were matched by Richie Ashburn and Johnny Blatnik of the Phils in the second contest.

In the second game's fourth inning, Ashburn was perched on second when Blatnik poked the ball to shortstop Dick Culler. Culler fired to Andy Pafko at third, and Ashburn appeared caught in a rundown—but he got back to second safely.

Pafko promptly touched Blatnik, who had reached second, putting Blatnik out since he was not entitled to the base with Ashburn standing on it.

Ashburn then stepped off the bag for some unknown reason and Pafko tagged him out also. It was scored a double play.

The Mauch-Waitkus oddity came in the first inning of the first game.

Curt Simmons set the stage for the dramatics by issuing walks to both Mauch and Waitkus. Then Hal Jeffcoat came to bat.

Mauch made a feint toward third and Simmons backed off the rubber and threw to Bert Haas at third. Haas ran Mauch back toward second and Waitkus broke for that station.

Haas tagged Mauch a few feet from the bag and then unexplainably Waitkus, who already had reached second, turned around and headed back to first.

Haas tossed to Second Baseman Granny Hamner. Hamner threw it back to Haas and then Haas pitched the ball to First Baseman Dick Sisler. Sisler returned the throw and Haas tagged out Waitkus.

It was a double play, believe it or not: Simmons to Haas to Hamner to Haas to Sisler to Haas.

P. S. Jeffcoat struck out.

Byrne Hurls 7-0, 2-Hitter For Yankees

Detroit, June 27 (AP).—The New York Yankees shut out the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 0, today behind the two-hit pitching of Tommy Byrne before a crowd of 35,840. The win game the Yankees the series, two games to one.

The Yankees got nine hits, all off Paul Trout and Stubby Overmire. Hal White, third Tiger hurler, held the New Yorkers hitless the final two stanzas.

Byrne walked eight in posting his first win this season, but the Tigers got only two runners as far as third.

Johnny Lipon and Jimmy Outlaw got the safeties off Byrne.

Blackwell Gets Back in Stride, Beats Giants

New York, June 27 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds tallied twice after two were out in the seventh inning on four singles and went on to nip the New York Giants, 4-3, today in the first game of a scheduled double-header. The second game was postponed because of rain.

Pinchhitter Babe Young opened the Reds' winning rally with a one-bagger. Johnny Wyrostek, Augie Galan and Grady Hatton followed with singles with Hatton's blow bringing in Wyrostek with the pay-off run.

The Giants announced they were playing the game under protest in the eighth inning. The Giants claimed that Thirdsacker Danny Litwhiler threw his glove at a ball hit by Walker Cooper entitling Cooper to three bases. Third Base Umpire Jocko Conlon said the drive knocked the glove from Litwhiler's hand.

Elwell Blackwell, who hasn't pitched a complete game since April 23, started for Cincinnati and worked the first six innings. He left for a pinchitter in the seventh and Harry Gumbert finished up, but Blackwell gained credit for the triumph. Clint Hartung was the losing pitcher.

HEADED FOR LONDON—Bob Mathias of Tulare (Calif.) High School, clears the bar in the high jump event of the Olympic decathlon tryouts at Bloomfield, N. J., in which the schoolboy sensation finished first. Mathias yesterday took the lead away from defending decathlon champion Irving (Moon) Mondschein of NYU, and assured himself of an Olympic team berth

Will Lead Olympic Team

17-Year-Old Calif. Schoolboy Wins National Decathlon Title

Bloomfield, N. J., June 27 (AP).—Bob Mathias, 17-year-old Tulare (Calif.) High School boy, became the National AAU decathlon champion today and earned the right to head the U. S. Olympic team of three all-around athletes in London this summer.

Competing in his second decathlon event since he grew to 6 feet 1½ inches and 190 pounds of athletic talent, Mathias piled up an unofficial total of 7224 points in the 10-event grind yesterday and today.

Making the Olympic team with the West Coast sensation were two of America's most durable iron men—Irv Mondschein of the New York Pioneer Club, the former champion, and Floyd Simmons of the Los Angeles A. C.

Mondschein had 7101 points to Simmons' 7054 total for second and third places.

Wrests Lead From Mondschein

Mathias, one of four children of a California physician, scored 7094 recently in his first decathlon meet on the West Coast. He did not finish first in a single event here, but was among leaders in each of the 10.

Mondschein had led at the end of yesterday's five events with 4187 points. Simmons was second and Mathias third with 3885 and 3833, respectively.

The sky was dark and foreboding when the meet resumed at 12:30 p. m. (EST) today and after the first flight of athletes had completed the 110-meter hurdles and discus the downpour came. For more than an hour the meet was delayed. When it was resumed another difficulty arose over the condition of the pole vault runway and pit.

McKenley Splits

After another hour or so of discussion it was decided to go ahead with the vault. Mathias and Simmons passed up their tries, but Mondschein kept at it. He went out at 11 feet 6.

The team of Mathias, Mondschein and Simmons will attempt in London to duplicate the feat of Glenn Morris, Robert Clark and Jack Parker in finishing 1-2-3 in the 1936 Berlin Olympics. There Morris set the world decathlon mark of 7900. He also holds the AAU mark of 7880.

Haas' 205 Wins Peoria Open

Peoria, Ill., June 27 (AP).—Freddie Haas, jr., of New Orleans today won the $5000 Peoria Open, a 54-hole tourney, with a 205 total—11 strokes under par for the Newman municipal course.

Haas shot a 68 yesterday in the first round and posted 66-71 in today's 36-hole windup. Tied for second place at 208 were Ralph Blomquist of Glendale, Calif., with a closing 69-70 and Amateur John Barnum of Chicago with 71-70.

Johnsen-Hippenstiel Win Doubles Crown

Dr. Dave Johnson and Capt. Robin Hippenstiel defeated Herb Mertz and Grady Frank, 7-5, 6-0, 7-5, to win the Woodmont Country Club Invitation Doubles Championship yesterday on the Woodmont courts.

Twice-Postponed Robinson, Docusen Bout Goes On Tonight or Ray May Lose Title

Chicago, June 27 (AP).—Another attempt to hold the welterweight title scrap between Champion Ray (Sugar) Robinson and New Orleans' young Bernie Docusen will be made tomorrow night in Comiskey Park.

The 15-rounder has been twice postponed, once because of rain and again because Robinson failed to make the 147-pound weight limit.

Robinson shedded some 9 pounds to hit 147 on the original date June 17, but the fight was washed out. He was overweight last Monday and the bout was rescheduled for tomorrow.

At last reports, the Harlem sugar boy was down to only 149 and would have to do a lot of sweating to get under the wire in tomorrow's scaling.

Should the champion fail to make weight, the Illinois Athletic Commission threatens to declare the welter title vacant and Robinson will forfeit a $5000 bond. If bad weather stalls the show it will be held Tuesday night. If it cannot be held then, it will be canceled.

Otis Guichet and Bonny Geigerman, manager of Docusen, argue that Robinnson should have been stripped of his crown when he failed to make weight last Monday. They said they have entered a protest with the National Boxing Association and the New York State Commission and are now claiming the title for Docusen. All this, however, apparently will be smoothed over if the Harlem puncher can clock at 147 pounds or under in tomorrow's ceremonies.

Robinson, himself, says this is his last defense of the welter crown.

"It's just too much for me to try to make 147 pounds," he declares. "I'm moving up to the middleweight class."

He hopes to meet Champion Tony Zale in a middleweight title match in September. But first he must get by Docusen, a 22-year-old polished fighter with a world of confidence.

Odds favoring Robinson have been cut to no more than 2-1 since his weight-making difficulties.

Champ Jumper Destroyed at Potomac Hunt

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Tragedy marred the fifth annual Potomac Hunt horse show when Helen Eichelberger's game Baltimore entry, Sedgefire, suffered a broken leg at the triplebar jump in the featured jumper stake class and had to be destroyed in the ring in front of the 2000 spectators.

Silence reigned as Fred Hughes, sr., administered the shot.

Sedgefire, ridden by Buddy Conrad, met his end in the category to his liking and for which he was cut out, for having won the open jumper championship at his last show in Hyattsville, Md.

Party Miss defeated one of the strongest fields of open jumpers to be seen at a one-day show this season; she is owned by George Fitzpatrick of Baltimore, Md.

Meeting a class of entries, never before encountered, Avon Chockey's young open prospect, Red Knight, proved his value in this division by taking the reserve laurels.

Red Knight, a newcomer to the Eastern open jumper ranks, was ridden by Lee S. Jones to annex the go-as-you-please class and place second in both the touch-and-out and modified Olmpia events with a well deserved fourth in the stake class.

H. O. Firor's Blue Ridge, also a Baltimore entry, reflected his Virginia tutorship, under his former owner Cappy Smith, winning the coveted hunter championship under the capable handling of Hugh Wiley. Reserve hunter honors went to the grand little horse of Katherine Kelly's, Maryland Miss, one of the most consistent locally owned children's mounts currently showing.

Ballela, locally owned by George Mueller and another of the Cappy Smith products, was shown by the well-known rider Gardner Hallman to take the blue in the important model class and with consistently good performances, after a long oblivion to jumping, placed second in the open hunters and fourth in the working, the only three events he was entered in.

Hudson 8-5 Tonight Over Hursey

Washington Middleweight Smuggy Hursey, who recently lost decisions in Madison Square Garden to Harold Green and Anton Raadik, returns to Griffith Stadium tonight for a 10-round bout with Cecil Hudson of San Jose, Calif.

Hursey's recent defeats and Hudson's decision over Jake LaMotta at Chicago last September, have established the Californian an 8-5 favorite. After his win from LaMotta Hudson dropped three straight decisions to little-known club fighters.

Hursey's slightly spotty record looks better in the financial than the won-and-loses column. He was the town's leading money-maker last summer, grossing $200,000 for five open-air bouts.

In addition to his victory over LaMotta, Hudson, who seems to rise and fall to occasions, boasts triumphs over Tommy Belle, Fritzie Zivic and Chuck Hunter. He has lost to Sheik Rangel, O'Neil Bell and Jackie Cooper, among others.

Hursey's two losses in the Garden recently both were split decisions. He gained the referee's nod in the Raadik affair, a dull bout which saw the Washingtonian's wild punching flurries leave the Estonian smiling and unhurt.

Two 6-round preliminary bouts are scheduled for tonight. Al Wright and John Hansbury, middleweights, will tangle in one and Lightweight Kid Willie will oppose Pug Lyons in the second. Three 4-rounders will complete the card.

275 Golfers Entered

Stranahan, Harmon Favored To Win British Open Crown

Muirfield, Scotland, June 27 (AP).—Hard-working Frank Stranahan, one of the best amateur golfers to come down the world's fairways since Bobby Jones, tested every stick in his bag on the practice range today to sharpen his bid for the British Open Golf championship.

Stranahan, a Toledo, Ohio, youth, is fancied about equally with Claude Harmon, black-haired professional from Mamaroneck, N. J., as the man most likely to win the big championship cup in five days of play starting tomorrow.

Ulsterman Fred Daly combined the luck of the Irish with steady golf to edge Frank out of the championship by one stroke a year ago. Since then Stranahan has won the British Amateur title and his game is considerably improved.

Harmon established himself as a great golfer by winning the Augusta Masters Tourney this year.

Stranahan and Harmon are the acknowledged standouts among an American invading force of 13—six professionals and seven amateurs.

Henry Cotton, most celebrated British professional, nominated Norman Von Nida, little Australian professional, Johnny Bulla from the United States and Daly as the golfers most likely to to stop Frank and Claude.

The 275 entries play 18 holes a day Monday and Tuesday—one round over the championship Muirfield course and one over neighboring Gullane—to pick the 100 best scorers for the championship proper.

After the first two 18-hole championship rounds Wednesday and Thursday, the best 40 will advance to Friday's 36-hole finals in the medal play tournament.

event which they previously had won in 1941, 1946 and 1947.

They are the only pair even to repeat in the colorful birdie barrage, and now they've won it three straight times to establish themselves as tops in the best-ball field.

Hogan and Demaret also won the 1946 and 1947 Miami four-ball matches, and Hogan, the present PGA and National Open king, won the Miami affair in 1941 as Gene Sarazen's partner.

Of the $3500 prize, picked up by Hogan, now of Hershey, Pa., and Demaret, now pro at Ojai, Calif., $500 came as a result of yesterday's record-breaking shooting. For scoring the lowest round, 11-under par 60, they got an additional $250, and their birdie total of 52, tops in the field, was good for another $250. Last year they won the birdie prize with 51.

The winning margin of 10 points was the largest ever compiled in the best-ball chase.

Nats Win, 5-2, Lose Second To Tribe, 4-1

permitted the Indians their final run in the eighth, on doubles by Hal Peck and Walt Judnich.

He gave up two more hits in the ninth, but got Dale Mitchell, who represented the tieing run, to hoist harmlessly to Wooten to seal the Nat success.

Zoldak Bears Down

As far as the Nats were concerned, the first inning of the nightcap could have been skipped. Haefner pitched singles to Mitchell and Boudreau and followed with a home-run serve to Clark. With the crowd pleading for him to follow suit, Gordon did, smacking the next Haefner pitch over the fence in left.

Zoldak, scattering the seven hits he issued most effectively let up on the Washingtonians in the third long enough for them to produce their only run. Kozar's double and Gillenwater's single, which Mitchell bobbled momentarily, did the trick.

After that the Nats didn't get a man to second base.

IN SHORT—Larry Doby sprained his ankle sliding into second in the sixth inning of the opener and had to be carried from the field. His departure was not regretted by Earl Wooten, whom Doby robbed of two extra base hits with great running catches . . . The Indians used four pinch-hitters in the first game and every one of them got on base, three with doubles . . . The Nats wound up the western end of their 11-day trip with five victories and six losses . . . Until he hit his homer in the first inning of the nightcap, Gordon's only previous hit this series against the Nats was also a homer, smacked off Early Wynn Friday night . . . The Nats entrained for Philadelphia tonight where Tuesday evening they open a set with the Macks. Wynn is the pitcher.

Dundalk Pilot Claims World Record for Runabouts, Class C

Middle River, Md., June 27 (AP).—Edmund Thompson of Dundalk, Md., established a new one-mile world record claim today for Class C racing runabouts at the conclusion of the fifth annual power-boat regatta on the Middle River.

His speed was 53.255 miles per hour. Mrs. Mildred Foulke of Essex, Md., set the old standard last September with 52.555 miles per hour.

The performance of Thompson's craft, T. M. Special, shared top interest with Band Leader Guy Lombardo, whose craft, Tempo VI, won the featured 15-mile free-for-all event.

Lombardo decided to abandon an attempt at breaking the 15-year-old United States one-mile speed record set by Gar Wood with 124.915 miles per hour.

Poor visibility brought on by a morning haze kept the orchestra leader from racing his 25-foot, 1250-horsepower boat in a third try at the old American mark.

He held the boat to a 55.18 m.p.h average for the nine trips around a 1 2/3 oval course, outdistancing Joe Van Blerk of Freeport, L. I., by a 250-yard margin.

Babe Ruth 'Is Doing Well'

New York, June 27 (AP).—Babe Ruth "is doing well," Dr. Simon L. Ruskin said today. The home run king entered a hospital Thursday to receive special treatment.

Ruth underwent a delicate throat operation January 6, 1947, and has made periodic trips to the hospital since then to receive treatment. Dr. Ruskin, an ear, nose and throat specialist, is Ruth's personal physician.

1150 Per Diem Employes Get Raise at Bureau Of Engraving, Printing

BEP: About 1150 per diem employes of Treasury's Bureau of Engraving and Printing will be notified today that their salaries have been raised an average of 12 2/3 per cent.

The pay increases will be retroactive for most employes—some as far back as early April. Other increases will become effective in June. In all cases, the new rates will be in force two weeks after they were okayed by the Treasury Secretary.

BEP has 40-odd different classes of per diem employes. Only 15 formally petitioned for wage boosts. All groups will get a wage hike that will vary from 10 to 14½ per cent.

MINT: Treasury's wage board will soon consider a similar wage raise for its per diem employes in the Bureau of the Mint. Mint employes are demanding increases up to 25 per cent.

CENSUS will now escape a major layoff. In fact, it could hire several hundred new employes. Census was given a cut of about one million dollars by Congress in its regular appropriation—a slash that threated the jobs of about 400 employes.

However, a few days before Congress adjourned a bill was signed into law which authorized the bureau to conduct a census of business, mineral industries, and transportation to start next April. The agency sent up a quick request for 12 million dollars to do this work.

At the last minute, Congress appropriated $1,800,000 to do preliminary work on these censuses and it asked agency officials to return in January for a congressional review of the program. The agency expects to get additional funds at that time. But the money on hand will allow Census to increase its present staff.

RETIREMENT: Several Federal agencies are reported to be forcing out employes who are 70 and who haven't completed 15 years of service. Civil Service warns that this procedure is illegal, unless the discharges are for cause or made in a reduction of force. It reminds agencies and employes:

"That employes who reach the age of 70 before serving a total of 15 years are automatically continued in employment for retirement at the end of the month in which they complete 15 years of service unless further continued in service by executive order."

JOBS: Civil Service has an exam open for hospital attendant jobs at Freedman's Hospital here. The jobs pay from $1822 to $2168 a year (not counting the new pay raise). Veterans will be given top preference . . . Exams for three types of jobs at the Washington Airport are open. They are: firefighter, $2469 to $2895; laborer, and ramp controller, $2243, plus $330 in each case . . . Only 358 passed the test given some time ago for budget examiner and organization and methods examiner. About 1700 flunked out . . . Civil Service tests are open for physical therapist, $2644 to $5905, and advisor in education, $7102 to $9975.

NAVY has launched a program to attract top-flight college students to its many activities. Several hundred promising third and fourth year students with majors in physical and engineering sciences have been hired for summer work by Navy offices in and nearby this city.

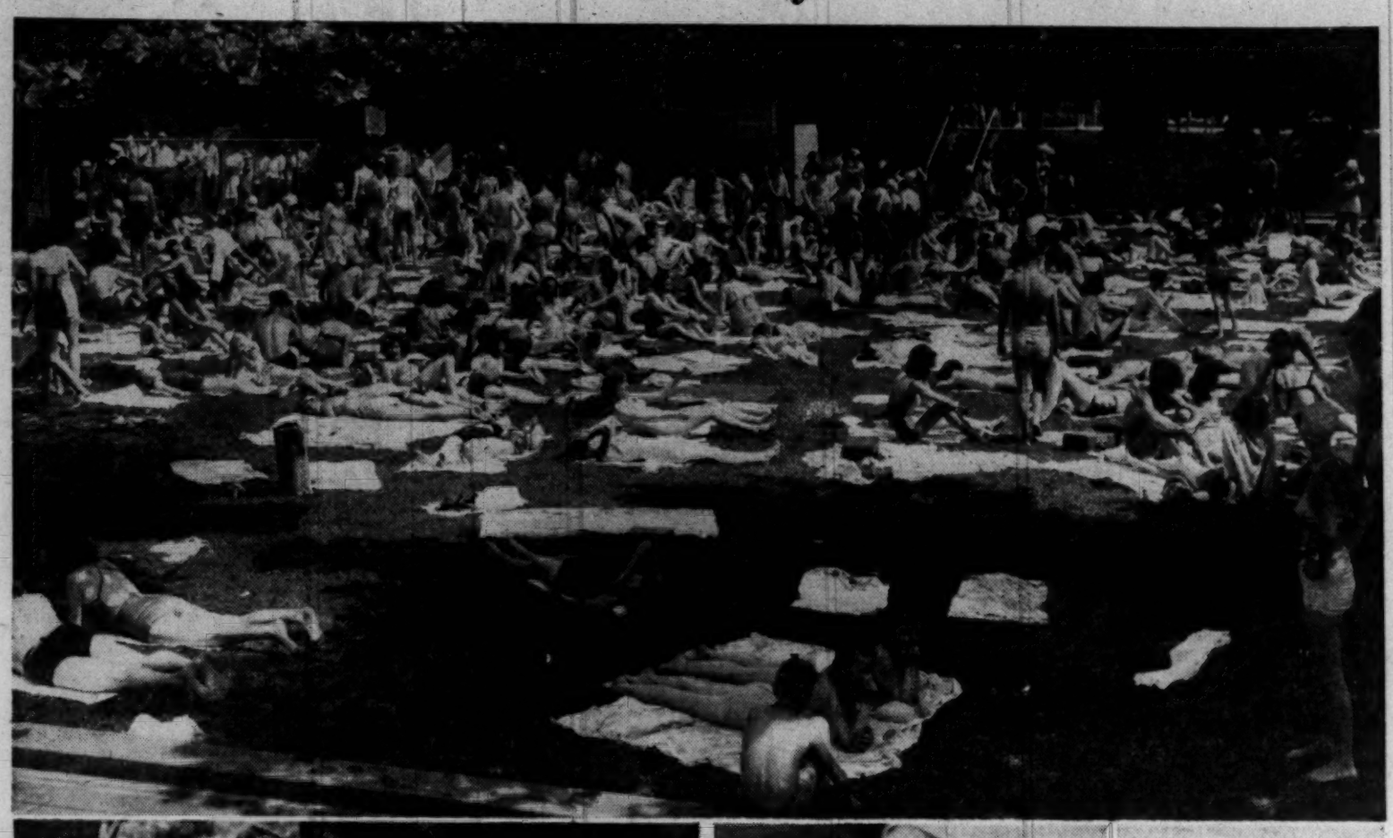
The Naval Research Laboratory has hired 195 students from Maryland and other nearby universities; the David Taylor Model Basin has 60 third-year students in areonautical and mechanical engineering, and also in naval architecture; the Bureau of Aeronautics has 25 aeronautical engineering students from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; the Bureau of Ships has 30 boys working on electronics, electrical and mechanical engineering, and 26 are employed in the Naval Ordnance Laboratory.

The Navy program is being watched closely by Civil Service and personnel people generally and it may turn out to be an effective way to attract outstanding college people in accepting career employment in the Government.

AFGE: This year's convention of the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes will begin Monday, August 30, in Philadelphia's Adelphia Hotel . . . LABOR: Frances Perkins, the Civil Service Commissioner, would be pleased if the President would appoint former Senator James Mead of New York to her old job as Labor Secretary . . . AIR FORCES will hire 95 investigators to staff its new office of special investigations. The jobs will be CAF-11 and above and they have been exempted from Civil Service.

NOTES: Stanley Oliver is the new president of AFL's Federation of Technical Engineers, Architects and Draftsmen Union. He succeeds Foster J. Pratt who did not run for reelection. His headquarters will be at 900 F st. nw. . . . The pay raise bill raises the salary of special delivery messengers from 75c to $1 an hour. . . . Lieut. Gen. George J. Richards, the Army's able budget officer, is being assigned to Germany. His successor will be Maj. Gen. Edmund H. Leavey . . . In its dying hours, the Congress passed a new Gold Star mothers bill—a measure to give 10-point preference for Federal jobs to mothers who lost more than one son in the war.

Old Sol Holds No Terrors for Crowds at Pool



The Washington Post

Old Sol held no terror for the crowd around East Potomac pool yesterday as picture at top indicates. With some shade around it seems only few took advantage of it. Lower left shows Mr. and Mrs. Raymond N. Earl of 1216 30th st. nw., melting marshmallows before a fire in Rock Creek Park. In lower center 19-month-old Nelson Adamic, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Adamic of 9723 Sligo Creek pkwy., Silver Spring, has the right idea on how to keep cool. Golfing was a hot proposition, too, for Miss Mary Kana, 2153 California st. nw., a secretary for the Air Forces, who is shown at lower right plodding along the East Potomac golf course, somewhat wet with perspiration and dubious about the fun of golfing in the sun

93-Degree Temperature Sends Thousands Seeking Cool Spots

Comedienne Beatrice Lillie used to trill that "mad dogs and Englishmen go out in the midday sun." So do Washingtonians, it seems.

Yesterday, when the official temperature reached 93 in the shade, and unofficial thermometers in the sun ranged upward from 110 degrees, uncounted thousands of Washingtonians had all kinds of ideas about keeping cool.

They could have stayed home and kept the sun out of the place, they could have snoozed quietly in the shade of the backyard tree, they could have gone in the water and stayed there—and many undoubtedly did.

But there were plenty who felt forced to get into the family car so they could ride through the blazing shimmer of asphalt or cement to "catch a little breeze"—a mixture of engine heat from other vehicles, exhaust from same, and naturally baked air.

A few, not satisfied even with sitting in a car and sweating, had to climb up on an unwilling quadruped, get jounced up and down in the sunlight for an hour or two, and finally end up where they started dripping, exhausted and bedraggled.

"The horses have more sense than some people," said Francis J. Hannan, half owner of the Edgewater Riding Academy. Admitting that not many came for rides in the middle of days like yesterday, he said the few who almost always do show up just don't realize that the hot sun is as bad for horses as it can be for human beings.

Others felt obliged to pick up heavy golf bags and drag themselves over parched fairways in pursuit of a small white ball which they themselves had sent as far out of sight as they could.

Still others swung rackets at larger balls which went to the other side of a net, only to have the thing come back to them in a less accessible place, necessitating considerable running—when they could have been lying down somewhere.

And those that did lie down somewhere—did they pick a shady spot, with wafting breezes to cool their brows? Some did, but a surprising number packed themselves into limited spaces which might be described as open-air ovens, in the full blaze of the sun—and just sweated.

Today, the Weather Bureau said, will be equally as warm and humid, with the sun soaring temperatures to around 94 degrees. Afternoon thundershowers are probable, the bureau added.

Man Running From Police Shot in Back

Flees Questioning By Officers Near Looted Tavern

Herring Hunter

A man of 22 was shot early yesterday as he fled from police who wanted to question him about a burglary.

Robert G. Hunter, 713 4th st., ne., was treated at Casualty Hospital, then transferred to Gallinger Hospital. He was said to be in critical condition from a bullet wound in the back.

Police Pvts. Warren C. Dameron and Sherwood H. Herring, of No. 9 Pct., received a radio call at 2:30 a. m. yesterday that someone was trying to break into the Camden Tavern, 13th and H sts., ne.

When they arrived they saw a strip of light reflected on the wall of a building across an alley from the rear of the building, and drove into the alley.

They saw Hunter, they said, lounging in the open tavern doorway, reading a comic book.

As the police car approached, Hunter started running, police reported. Dameron leaped from the car and missed a flying tackle. Pvt. Herring continued the pursuit.

Hunter, police said, dashed across 13th st. and turned into Wiley Court. When he failed to stop Herring drew his revolver and fired one shot from about 75 feet, the bullet hitting Hunter in the back. Later police learned from M. I. Wayne, operator of the tavern, that nine bottles of whisky had been stolen from the place, apparently by another man. The back door of the tavern had been broken open.

Police records showed that Hunter was released last April from Lorton Reformatory after serving four years of a five-year sentence for a series of housebreakings.

Pvt. Herring, who is 27, lives at 3360 Blaine st. ne. He has been a Metropolitan policeman for two years.

New Research Grant Made To Hospital

Children's Hospital has been awarded an additional $13,000 to further its special studies of diarrhea in infants and children, it was made known today.

The extra allotment, by the National Research Grants Division of United States Public Health Service, will augment an earlier grant of $8000 from USPHS, and will permit more intensive research into therapeutic measures, including the use of streptomycin to fight diarrhea, the hospital said.

The grants permit assignment of a team of physicians to work on multiple phases of diarrhea investigation. Serving are Drs. E. Clarence Rice, Frederic G. Burke, Sidney Ross, John A. Washington and Harold Bischoff.

Largely because of special attention concentrated in the past year on diarrhea, a hospital spokesman said, the mortality rate for the disease among infants has shown marked reduction. Children's Hospital recorded one death in 125 reported cases for the past full year, in contrast to previous rates as high as one death in every six cases.

The special studies now under way at the hospital include examinations for virus, to determine its presence in infantile diarrhea.

Many-Hued Canaries Vie For Trophies

Like beauty queens at the beach, a roomful of canaries strutted, preened and posed yesterday—and there wasn't a chirp out of the lot.

The birds competed for trophies and ribbons in a contest sponsored by the National Capital Canary Club in Tent Hall, 7 4th st. ne.

What the 167 contestants lacked in voice, they made up in beauty. Colors of the canaries—all babies—ranged from lemon pink to deep yellow, pink and orange. Longtime goal of breeders is a red-hued canary.

Smacked in with the canaries were several parakeets in blues, limes and grays—some with purple markings and all with banana-colored beaks.

Twenty-four breeders entered the show. After hours of close scrutiny, Mrs. Raymond Barclay of Baltimore, the judge, came up with the best in the crowd—a red factor border cross, owned by John Reidy of 4906 7th st. nw.

Woodridge Group To Hear Newell Speak Tuesday

Clifford H. Newell, past president of the District Federation of Citizens Associations, will address the Greater Woodridge Land Covenant Alliance, Inc., at 8 p. m. Tuesday in Bateman's Store, 2004 Rhode Island ave. ne.

Newell will discuss his "option" plan which would replace covenants ruled unenforcable under recent Supreme Court decision. The plan would set up "block captains" who would hold options on all property under their command and could buy the properties at bid prices if the prospective buyer was deemed undesirable. The Woodridge Alliance Corporation includes members of the Rhode Island ave., National Gateway, and Burroughs Citizens Associations.

The District No. 2 Citizens' Association of College Park, Md., will hold its last meeting of the season at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the Episcopal Parish Hall on Dartmouth ave. The group will elect officers and discuss street improvement and drainage program developments.

Whitney to Discuss Air Force Program

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, will speak at a meeting of Air Force Reserve members at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the Department of Interior auditorium, 19th and C sts. nw. He will discuss the Air Reserve program.

Takoma Park To Discuss Record Budget

$224,175 Proposed Outlay Drawn Up by Mayor and Council

A record tentative budget of almost a quarter million dollars for Takoma Park, Md., will be discussed at a public hearing scheduled for 8 o'clock tonight in the Community Center, 8 Columbia ave.

The $224,175 proposed outlay, highest in the city's history, was drawn up by Major John C. Post and the City Council. Formal action must be taken on it by the city government by July 1, the beginning of the municipality's fiscal year.

The increase of $66,000 over the $158,000 budget of 1947-48 represents larger appropriations by the council for practically every branch of municipal service.

The 1948-49 estimates provide pay increases, not to be specified until tonight, for the city police and some other employes. The budget also will establish an assistant superintendent of public works, two more policemen and two additional firemen.

A breakdown of the proposed appropriations follows: Office, $22,000; police, $21,000; garbage and trash collection, $44,000; traffic and street lighting, $8000; street construction and maintenance, $51,000; fire department, $31,000; library association, $7000; parks and playgrounds, $4000, and reserve, $25,000.

Earlier in the month the council set the tax levy at $1.20 per $100 assessed valuation, the same as last year.

175 Boys Leave For Police Club Camp Today

The first contingency of 175 boys will leave the District today for two weeks of fun and fresh air at Camp Ernest W. Brown, the Police Boys' Club camp in Scotland, Md.

The boys will depart at 9:30 a. m. by bus from Police Precinct No. 5, 5th and E sts. se. Police Boys' Club officials, including Robert C. Simmons, club board president; Morris Cafritz, camp committee chairman; Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, and Harry Child, camp supervisor, will be on hand for the sendoff.

Parents of boys between 8 and 16 years of age may obtain application forms for Camp Brown at any police station or Police Boys' Club. The camp is entirely free. Most deserving youngsters are given preference.

Adventists Plan to Build 8 Churches

Plans to build eight Seventh-day Adventist churches in the Washington, Virginia and Maryland area were announced yesterday by Elder Howard J. Detwiler, president of the Potomac Union Conference.

Elder Detwiler disclosed the building program at the biennial conference business session of the Adventists held in conjunction with the annual 10-day camp meeting in Takoma Park, Md.

About $250,000 will be used to begin construction on churches in the following localities: Pennsylvania ave. se., near 30th st.; Silver Spring, Md., Arlington, Petersburg, Princess Anne, Fredericksburg, Va., and Damascus, Md.

In addition, Elder Detwiler said the denomination has purchased a lot on 16th st. nw., near the Capitol Memorial Church, for an additional building.

Five new churches are being completed now at a cost of $150,000, Elder Detwiler said, in Roanoke, Appalachia, Pulaski, Strausburg and Yellow Branch, Va.

In his annual report a gain from 5917 to 6409 church members was made during the past two years. These members gave a total of $1,670,495 in tithes and contributions for foreign missions and expansion of church work, representing an increase of $241,405 over the previous two-year period. Besides this amount they gave generously to foreign relief and to local missionary and church activities. Elder Detwiler commended them for their "sacrificial giving."

All officers of the conference were reelected yesterday as follows: Elder Detwiler, president; William H. Jones, secretary-treasurer and public relations director; heads of departments: Enos S. Knecht, book and Bible house manager; Clyde A. Smith, publishing secretary; Warren N. Wittenberg, secretary of home missionary, young people and temperance department; Archer O. Dart, Sabbath school and educational secretary; Miss Ada Dean, medical secretary, and Elder Detwiler, religious liberty secretary.

Those elected to the Executive Committee were E. F. Koch, Richmond, Va., H. A. Morrison, Elder Detwiler and Jones, all of Takoma Park; L. R. Mansell, Roanoke, Va., C. H. Dougherty, Portsmouth, Va., W. C. Hanna, New Market, Va., J. L. Price, Arlington, Va. Elder N. S. Ashton, pastor of the Sligo Church, Takoma Park; Elder George S. Rapp, pastor of the Takoma Park Church and Elder R. L. Boothby, pastor of the Capitol Memorial Church.

City Is Criticized On Slums, Failure To Give Medical Care to Needy

An Alexandria minister yesterday took his city to task for permitting slum conditions to exist and for failing to provide medical and health assistance for the needy.

"There is no excuse for the existence of open sewage in the middle of this city, nor the failure to use X-ray equipment which stands idle in the corner of a city building," the Rev. Thomas A. Fraser declared at the morning service of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Duke and South Pitt sts., Alexandria.

"As Christians," he said, "we must leaven the lump and in this case we have a real lump to leaven."

Action Is Urged

The rector called for "lay missionaries who will study and investigate these needs and bring about action in the right direction."

A story and pictures appearing in The Washington Post a week ago "confirmed unsanitary conditions of our city," Mr. Fraser said.

"No Alexandrian should ever forget the caption over the picture, 'Dump serves as playground for youngsters.'"

He said that several years ago when he had urged action in ridding the city and the schools of rats, friends had advised him "to stick to spiritual matters."

"Maybe some people believe that this isn't the church's business but right now it appears to be nobody's business as far as correcting the matter is concerned," he said.

"It is always a theological error to say what our Blessed Lord would do if He should return today, but I am certain that He would shake us loose from our lethargy and would clean us out as He did the Temple."

Mr. Fraser declared "there can be no godly quietness in a situation where schools and courts and playgrounds and health conditions are carelessly kicked about and constantly slept over.

"There can be nothing but godly and righteous indignation," he said.

Biblical Command Used

The minister used as his theme the Biblical command: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

Under this command, he said, "we must fight apathy and lethargy on every side and the best way I can do it is to help you keep your religion related to the life-situation."

"Christianity was not revealed in a vacuum and it cannot be lived in a vacuum, therefore we can not seek escape in sticking to spiritual matters," the rector said.

Pointing out that the "churches of this town are forty strong," Mr. Fraser said that a "large percentage of the members of the Episcopal Churches" of Alexandria "are business and professional people who have had the privileges of good technical training."

The minister said it would not be enough for Alexandria to meet its goal of $20,000 in the campaign for funds for its hospital.

Agencies of the city, he said, are unable to care for the chronically ill and indigent.

Church Case Cited

For his own congregation Mr. Fraser had a particular and immediate task.

He recited the history of a church member who, dying of an incurable illness, cannot afford hospital or nursing care.

"There is a whole area of medical and health assistance which is as yet unexplored," he said, "not only here but across the continent, but this is our parish and here we must begin our work."

More Support For Social Work Urged

More community support to improve social services for children was urged last night by a Delaware educator.

The meeting of human needs is not a professional monopoly, but should have everyone's interest and support, Mrs. Dorothy F. Banton, superintendent of Kruse School, Marshallton, Del., told members of the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers.

About 200 persons attended the dinner at the Charles Young School, 24th st. and Benning rd. ne., opening event of the organization's twenty-second annual convention.

Mrs. Banton described the lack of proper care for physically, mentally and socially handicapped children, as revealed in studies of delinquency.

"Until we secure services for all children, we won't have them for Negro children," she said, "and where they are limited they are more limited for Negro children.

Capital Scouts Acquire Use of Hoover's Va. Camp

National Capital Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, has acquired use of the 200-acre Rapidan Fishing Camp of former President Herbert Hoover, Ralph A. Van Orsdel, council president, announced yesterday.

The camp, in Shenandoah National Park about 100 miles from Washington, will be opened for Scouts as soon as facilities can be provided, Van Orsdel said, possibly during August.

Use of the camp by Scouts followed negotiations between the Department of the Interior and the former President. Funds for maintenance and development have been furnished by the Old Dominion Foundation.

Residents of Greater Washington have donated $45,000 toward development of another recent camp acquisition on Mason Neck, below Fort Belvoir off U. S. Route 1. The council hopes to raise $125,000 to set up this camp as a weekend retreat and training center.

Bodies of Captain, 2 Children Start To Kansas Today

The bodies of Capt. Charles D. Liggett and his children, Sharon, 5, and Fred, 4, will be shipped tonight by train to Dodge City, Kans., for burial there on Tuesday.

The bodies will be accompanied by Mrs. F. Josephine Liggett, wife of the Army officer, and Capt. Thomas Miller of the Military Air Transport Service. Dodge City is the former home of Mrs. Liggett and she requested the bodies be buried there, an Army spokesman said yesterday.

Captain Liggett shot and killed his two children and then killed himself early Friday morning, presumably in a flash of anger during a tiff with his wife.

2000 Visit Exhibit Of Old-Time Trains

More than 2000 persons braved yesterday's blistering heat to see the collection of old trains and railroad equipment which Baltimore & Ohio Railroad had on exhibit in Silver Spring.

Among the spectators at the one-day exhibit were scores of small boys who delighted in a replica of the "Tom Thumb" locomotive built by Peter Cooper in 1829. Many of the old cars and equipment were more than 100 years old.

The collection included 23 historic locomotives and passenger and freight cars. It will leave Silver Spring today for the Chicago Railroad Fair, opening July 20.

K. P. Plaque Unveiled

More than 700 persons yesterday attended the unveiling of a Knights of Pythias Memorial plaque, memorializing the organization's World War I and II dead.

The plaque, which will remain on view in the trophy room in Arlington Cemetery, was authorized by the Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias in August 1946.

In yesterday's ceremony, held before the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Willard M. Kent, supreme Chancellor of the order, presented the memorial plaque to J. J. Walsh, sr., Arlington Cemetery superintendant. Mrs. Audrey Gibson, D. D. G. C., the Pythian Sisters, deposited the plaque in the trophy room.

Children Abroad Aided

Children of nearby Woodacres, Md., have been doing their bit for needy youngsters overseas.

Teen agers, working in pairs under the guidance of Mrs. Harold E. Snyder, 7203 Harwick rd., have collected $210.10 in a house-to-house canvass. They've turned the money over to the United Nations' Crusade for Children.

Younger children, members of Brownie Troop No. 83, have distributed pamphlets telling of the foreign children's plight.

Tick Victim Better

Arlington Hospital last night reported "definite improvement" in the condition of Erwin N. Williams, 22, of McLean, Va., who entered the hospital early last week as a suspected tick fever victim.

The hospital said, however, Williams codition despite the improvement, remains critical.

An employe of a plant nursery in Falls Church, Williams was stricken a few days after a barber discovered a tick embedded in Williams scalp. He is the fourth Fairfax County tick fever victim this season.

John Fisher to Speak

John M. Fisher, of the Washington bureau of the Chicago Tribune, will be guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Civitan Club Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. in Hotel Mayflower. His subject: "Behind the Scenes at the Republican National Convention."

Boy Escapee Returned

A bicycle with an unlocked lock yesterday returned a 14-year-old escapee to St. Mary's Industrial School at Baltimore, Md.

Corpl. George Windham of the Silver Spring substation of Montgomery County Police became suspicious of a boy when he saw a new bicycle with a lock still in place. He asked the boy to unlock the new lock on the bike and he had no key.

Windham, who has rehabilitated more than two score so-called "problem" children at his farm near Colesville, Md., took the boy to the police substation. Detective Sergt. Stanley Harding questioned the boy, found he had stolen a radio as well as the bicycle.

Amnesia Victim Found

Washington police are seeking the identity of a woman, apparently the victim of amnesia, found wandering in the street at Colmar Manor, Md., about 4:30 p. m. yesterday.

The woman was picked up by Chief of Police Henry Caspare of Colmar Manor when she told him that she did not know her name or where she was from except that she seemed to remmeber she was from Washington.

Chief Caspare took her to Hyattsville County Building and later she was turned over to Washington police who took her to Gallinger Hospital. The woman was neatly dressed, about 50 years old, wore eyeglasses and had black hair mixed with gray. She weighs about 135 pounds, police said.

He Lost His Boat and Billfold in Fire

The Washington Post

A TOUGH BREAK—Watha T. Daniel of 1008 New Jersey ave. se., shown in center with straw hat, was pumping bilge from his 18-foot boat yesterday in the Anacostia River when sparks from an electric pump set the craft on fire. The boat was cut adrift from the docks. Firemen are looking for Daniel's billfold containing $40 in the debris.

Motorboat Is Burned To Waterline

Fire virtually destroyed an 18-foot motorboat on the Anacostia River near the Sousa Bridge about 3:15 p. m. yesterday.

The boat belonged to Watha T. Daniel, 1008 New Jersey ave., se., a plumber. It burned to the waterline before firemen extinguished the blaze.

Daniel said a spark from an electric pump ignited oily water as he pumped bilge from the boat.

The boat was tied up at the Seafarers Boat Club. It was cut loose to save nearby boats, then floated across the river to the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge near the Anacostia public golf course. The fire was put out by Engine Company No. 18.

Daniel said he spent three years of spare time building the boat and recently turned down an $1800 offer for it.

Born in Irwinton, Ga., General Lindsey entered West Point when he was 17.

An Ardent Horseman

An ardent horseman, General Lindsey was appointed as senior cavalry instructor at West Point in 1912. He served in that capacity until 1916 during which time he introduced polo at the academy.

When this country entered World War I in 1917, General Lindsey, then a lieutenant colonel, was promoted to brigadier general and put in command of the 164th Infantry Regiment which saw action in the Meuse-Argonne drive with the Eighty-second Division.

After the war, General Lindsey served in various posts in this country and in 1932, promoted to brigadier general on the regular list, he was given command of Ft. Knox, Ky., mechanized cavalry center.

Upon his retirement in 1934, General Lindsey, a widower, made his home at the Army and Navy Club here.

He never gave up his fondnees for the horse cavalry. One anecdote has it that when the news of Pearl Harbor was flashed, he remarked to a fellow officer: "This would never have happened if the cavalry had been there."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman Is Distressed Because Her Widowed Sister, in Preparing to Marry Widower, Intends to Pay Half the Household Costs

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My sister Alice was widowed several years ago, after only three years' marriage.

Now she is getting married again to a widower who has two grown sons. The sons will not be living with them, but what distresses me is that Alice wants to go fifty-fifty in sharing all expenses of home-making with Fred (her husband-to-be).

Fred is 100 per cent for that arrangement, of course; but I cannot approve of it, and neither can my husband.

What's to Gain, If Not Support?

I LOVE Alice very much and we are very close, and I have told her that Fred should pay all the household expenses; otherwise what is she gaining by marriage if she still has to support herself?

It is my belief that the more a woman takes off a man's shoulders, the less he respects her. Any man worth his salt feels a certain pride in supporting his wife. But take away from him all responsibility of that sort and you take away his love and respect for her also. We would appreciate your advice.

E. B.

Woman Is Clinging To Waning Tradition

DEAR E. B.: In general it is true that a man who is able to provide a good living for his wife feels a certain pride in his performance on that score; and to the extent that she is appreciative of his provender and sympathetic to his saga of struggle and achievement, he is likely to hold her increasingly dear, as the companion and confidante who gives purpose to his efforts and strength to his spirit.

As for why he feels pride in supporting a wife, I think it is primarily because it equates him "manly" in terms of folk tradition, which prior to the second quarter of the twentieth century held that woman's place was in the home and that man's duty was to maintain her there, in some degree of solvency and comfort.

Owing to this tradition, the average man in past generations unconsciously felt "on trial" before society in the matter of supporting his wife, hence was compulsively exercised to meet said economic test of his manhood by measuring up to standards respected in his environment, if possible; and if he succeeded, he experienced a special glow of satisfaction or ego-reassurance from his display of competence in that particular.

Indubitably many a self-doubting male of that era flinched from the idea of being the husband of a working wife, lest her enterprise make him suspect (he feared) of being a straw man in relation to her, if not a washout in the role of breadwinner. In any event, history shows that only solidly integrated, positively self-confident men of superior competence and creative vision championed this "new freedom" for women.

Male-Oak Psychology Is Gone With the Wind

THAT NEAT tradition of which we speak, and its concomitant psychology (which embraced a deal of morbidity and spurious sentiment), have more or less gone with the wind, due to the economic convulsions attendant on and contributing to the two cataclysmic world wars which ushered in the fearsome unfathomable Atomic Age,—which finds men and women groping for security in terms of mutual support all along the line, when they make common cause in marriage.

Thus the touchstone of man's conjugal worth today is not to be judged in terms of "Can and will he pay all the household expenses?" but rather in terms of his qualities of compatibility and fidelity in relation to the woman who ventures to merge her life with his.

In all probability Alice set her cap for Fred, wanting companionship more than support, and evoked his decision to marry by persuading him that she would be an economic asset rather than a "responsibility" in double harness. Which would make your carping about her purpose cruelly wounding and subtly destructive, when unalloyed good wishes would be more expressive of helpful sisterly love of her.

Simple Rules Given to Prevent Worry, Fatigue

Worry and fatigue can be prevented by observing a few simple rules.

By eliminating these two destructive factors from your daily life, you will keep your energy and spirits high.

Certain ways of preventing worry and fatigue are given by Dale Carnegie in an article in the July issue of Cosmopolitan magazine, in which he states:

"Rest before you get tired.

"Learn to relax at your work.

"Apply these five good working habits. (1) Clear your desk of all papers except those relating to the immediate problem. (2) Do things in the order of their importance. (3) Do the distasteful things first. (4) When you face a problem, solve it then and there, provided you have necessary facts. (5) Learn to organize, deputize and supervise.

"To prevent worry and fatigue, put enthusiasm into your work.

"Remember, no one was ever killed by lack of sleep. It is worry about insomnia that does the damage—not insomnia."

Ask Anne About Soup From Fruit

Have you a recipe for strawberry soup? — S. U.

STRAWBERRY SOUP

2 cups strawberries
1 quart cold water
½ lemon
Sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Pinch nutmeg

Cover berries with water and bring slowly to the boiling point. Let boil a few minutes to extract juice and then strain. Add grated rind of lemon and sweeten to taste. Add cornstarch, moistened with a little cold water and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add nutmeg and serve hot or cold. Serves six.

Picnic time is here again, and here's a savory ham-vegetable sandwich recipe with which to greet the happy season. Combine 1 cup grated raw carrots, ¼ cup chopped green pepper, ¼ cup mayonnaise and ½ teaspoon salt. Butter 8 slices of bread, then spread them with deviled ham. (It takes about a cupful.) Spread the carrot mixture over that and top off with another buttered slice of bread

Will you give me some suggestions for a fiftieth wedding anniversary gift, which must be mailed to Florida? — M. F.

If the couple or their friends are planning a reception or open house in connection with the anniversary, a gift which would bring pleasure would be a lovely guest book in which the guests could write their names. This could be a leather-bound book with the names of the couple imprinted in gold on the cover. Or, a less expensive book could be made by covering a paperbound guest book with gilt paper. White paper napkins in two sizes imprinted with the couple's names in gold would be a usable and personal gift. A gold or simulated gold picture frame would be a suitable gift. Also, towels, bed spreads, or linens in deep yellow or gold are considered appropriate for golden wedding gifts.

Can you tell me how to remove plastic base from an asphalt tile floor without injury to the asphalt tile? — G. J. F.

Lacquer thinner which can be bought at most hardware stores will safely remove this plastic.

What is the proper length for skirts now? — M. M.

The proper length for street dresses is about 12 inches from the floor. More formal afternoon dresses may be as long as 10 inches from the floor.

Last summer, I bought an expensive bathing suit made of a satin elastic fabric. The hotel where I spent my vacation had a new outdoor pool. After having been swimming and lying along the edge of the pool, I noticed that the color of the suit had faded badly in places, apparently from lime in the concrete. I have called several dyers and they say the suit would shrink if they tried dying it, as it would have to be boiled in the dye. Is there any method I can try at home, either to take the color out altogether, or dye it a darker shade in warm water? — G. M.

If the suit is a light color, you may be able to obscure the spots by tinting it with warm water and a home dye preparation. Be sure to rinse it very well with cold water afterwards, or you may present a striped appearance as you emerge from the swimming pool. Even so, the tint will probably gradually fade out and it will be necessary to dip it again. You would have to boil it to get a permanent dye job by home methods, too, and this would probably take all the "zip" out of the elastic.

My pressure cooker became dry and, consequently, the plug of metal in the safety valve (I guess) was disiodged. The bottom of the cooker now bulges out in the center, making it not exactly flat on the bottom. Do you know of any shop where I could have the bottom made flat again, and where I might have a new gadget put in the lid of the cooker? — M. C. G.

A replacement safety fuse which includes a new metal plug should have come with your cooker. You can replace this yourself simply by unscrewing the damaged one and replacing with the new one. If you no longer have the replacement, the dealer where you purchased the cooker has one or can tell you where one can be obtained.

The bulge in the bottom of your cooker cannot be repaired so simply, I'm afraid. It seems that the manufacturer of your cooker prefers that all such repairs be made by them at the factory. So I would suggest you write the factory and ask for suggestions as to its repair. If you do not have the factory address for your cooker it can be secured from their distributors in Washington. Look for the firm name under "Electric Appliances" in the Yellow Pages of the Directory.

A word of warning: the cooker is unsafe as it now is, so should not be used at all until repaired.

I have heard that carpet beetles are not susceptible to DDT. If this is true, how does one combat them? — M. K.

The most effective insecticides to control the carpet beetle or buffalo moth, as it is sometimes called, are naphthalene or paradichlorobenzene. These are sold as moth crystals or liquids.

Carpet beetles are sometimes harder to combat than the ordinary clothes moth because the breed in dust which has collected in cracks between floor boards, under carpets, in folds of upholstery, etc. Their eggs are always laid in dark, little-frequented places. If small worms are seen in such places, the rugs should be taken up, dust loosened from all cracks with a wire and picked up with the vacuum cleaner. If larva are found in the cracks when dust is removed, run kerosene into them with an oil can to kill all eggs. Going over all upholstery and every part of the rug frequently (expecially the dark, unused corners) with the vacuum helps remove eggs and eliminates damage from moths. If moths or beetles have been found on floor or under the rug, the rug and pad should be thoroughly cleaned and sunned before replacing.

Growing Child's Appetite

Put a small amount of each vegetable on the child's plate and he will invariably eat everything. Large amounts take away the young appetite, especially if they are of the vegetables of which he is not so fond. Never by any chance tell the child he must eat his spinach; it is a challenge immediately. Just put the spinach on his plate and act as if you thought he would be very glad to see it there. The jokes about spinach are rather misplaced anyway as most children enjoy the vegetable.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Elimination of Yellow Lights Suggested

A few days ago I suggested that it might be better if our local traffic signals would show a yellow light following the red.

Gordon W. McBride of 219 Raymond st., Chevy Chase, Md., has a much better suggestion. He says we ought to eliminate the yellow entirely, as they do in New York and several other cities.

When the green light has run its cycle, a red light appears, stopping traffic with a minimum of nonsense. Meantime the red light which has blocked cross-traffic also remains on for a few seconds, to clear the intersection.

Then it turns green and, barring Sunday drivers, circles, squares, streetcars, road repairs, trucks and children chasing a rolling ball, everybody continues on his merry way.

TWIN BILL

Several District Liners call our attention to the Seco Theater's recent double feature:

"The Secret Beyond the Door," "The Senator Was Indiscreet."

MAIL BAG

Dear Editor:

Your otherwise entertaining column has become a source of annoyance and distress, because of your Give-Away items.

I shudder to think of the fate of these hapless animals, given away helter-skelter. I have seen the result of carelessly placed animals—cute pets for a while, then turned out to starve.

Granted there may be cases where a good home is found for a pet. But the risk of placing them carelessly is too great to warrant such a practice.

Unwanted pets should be disposed of before their eyes are open, and mercifully put to sleep.

Susan R. Morton,
3034 South Abingdon st.,
Fairlington, Va.

Dear Bill:

Don't forget that, to many people, "a good home" merely means a plaything for Junior to pull around by the tail.

Or, what is even worse, there is the possibility of a pet becoming the victim of the nefarious racket of obtaining animals to sell to medical laboratories.

It would be far better . . . to have the babies mercifully and painlessly chloroformed immediately on birth . . .

Mrs. Charles E. Russell,
2011 I st. nw.

Dear Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Russell:

This subject was raised several months ago, and thoroughly discussed by the readers. District Liners voted to continue the Give-Aways, for these reasons:

1. The lifetime acceptability of a pet cannot be determined "before its eyes are open." Some families find themselves forced to move to other quarters, where pets cannot accompany them.

2. Many excellent homes are found for pets. There is no reason why the recipient cannot provide every bit as good a home as the donor.

3. Regardless of how mercifully we put an aimal "to sleep," the animal becomes very dead. District Liners voted that it was worthwhile to try to save the lives of these pets.

4. If Give-Away donors were unmindful of the welfare of their pets, they'd simply turn them out. The fact that these folks take the trouble to look for homes for the animals indicates that they exercise some judgment in selecting those homes.

Bill.

BY THE WAY—

It's time for another of our periodic reminders that we can't use anonymous letters. If there's a reason for withholding your name and/or address, I'll be glad to do it, on request. But for obvious reasons anonymous communications cannot be considered.

A PASS AND A PRAYER

Rodney Lucas of 1509 P st. nw. is probably one of Capital Transit's best customers.

Starting with the first "limited" passes in 1933, Rodney has bought (and saved) every weekly pass the company has ever issued.

A rough guess is that his collection now represents an investment of well over $1000.

Incidentally, it's interesting to note that the first passes sold for $1. The first "unlimited" passes, according to company officials, were $1.25.

Now the present $1.50 rate may soon be raised to as much as $1.85, if the company's prayers are answered. But the transit people figure that even at that rate the pass will be a bargain, because the average pass is used for 35 rides.

District Liner Lucas is now 76 years old, and retired. Back in his youth, he worked for the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Co., at a starting wage of $3 per week.

Wages, as well as fares, have gone up somewhat since that time.

SUMMERTIME

Fourteen-year-old Judy Ginsberg of 105 E. Uhler ave., Alexandria, Va., ate some strawberries the other night, and here's the result:

It's summertime, it's summertime,
It's great to be alive;
So all the poets say in rhyme,
But me—I've got a hive.

NEW YORK.—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor celebrated the Duke's 54th birthday in the Stork Club. Their host was Charles Cushing. The Duke, cutting down on smoking, has taken to chewing gum. The Duke hummed some of Mr. Cushing's favorite songs from "Bloomer Girl" and then sang "Blue Skies" and "My Wild Irish Rose" in a duet with Morton Downey.

The Windsors, who sailed for Europe Thursday plan to close their house in the south of France and move nearer Paris. Their house furnishings were saved for them by Swiss representatives two hours before the Nazis came to occupy it. The Swiss stored the gold and silverware and other valuables in three secret places in France, and returned them to the Windsors after the war . . . The Cunard Line permits each passenger to take two trunks and four bags, without extra charge. The Duchess asked Cunard to waive this regulation, on the ground that people who are returning to Europe to live there should be given a larger baggage allowance than tourists. Cunard said No . . . The Windsors' baggage includes cans of paint for their house, netting for screens to keep the mosquitos out, soap—mainly the kind used for laundering—and chewing gum for the Duke.

Deems Taylor, the composer and music critic, was a friend of the late Percy Rector Stephens, the voice teacher whose pupils included Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dewey. Stephens told Taylor of the time Dewey, a promising baritone, asked him for a frank opinion of his chances for a career as a professional singer. "You have a very good voice," said Stephens, "but your interpretations of music are from the head and not from the heart. If I were you," Stephens advised Dewey, "I wouldn't give up my studies at Columbia Law School."

Ferenc Molnar phoned the mother of his 8-month-old grandson and asked: "How much does the boy weigh?" . . . "Twenty-eight pounds," he was told . . . "Soon he'll catch up to me," said Molnar . . . "How many teeth does he have?" . . . "Nine teeth," he was told . . . Molnar sighed: "More than I have."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Housing Bill Scuttled by Six Men

By Drew Pearson

One of the most important votes in the closing days of Congress was held in strictest secrecy, though it affected several million people. It was the vote of the House Rules Committee to prevent the housing bill from reaching the floor of the Congress where other Congressmen could vote on it. However, this column has now obtained that secret vote.

Pearson

The Taft housing bill, with provisions for slum-clearance and low-cost housing, had long before passed the Senate. It also passed the House Banking and Currency Committee after Congressman Jesse Wolcott of Michigan pigeonholed it for weeks.

Finally it went to the Rules Committee, which has the power to decide whether any bill can come before the full House for a vote. And that was as far as it got. While thousands of veterans waited for long-promised housing to materialize, six Republicans on the Rules Committee voted thumbs down.

Naturally they tried to keep their names secret. However, here is the roll call of the six men who flouted the will of the majority of Congress and wouldn't even let 400-odd other Congressmen vote:

Leo Allen of Illinois, chairman of the Rules Committee; James Wadsworth of New York, who while voting with the real-estate interests on this, simultaneously demanded that young men be drafted; Edgar Chenoweth of Colorado, Ross Rizley of Oklahoma whose law firm represented some of the big natural gas companies while he authored a rate-increase bill for the gas companies; Forest Harness of Indiana; and Robert Rich of Pennsylvania.

Two Democrats present voted for the housing bill: Howard Smith of Virginia and Adolph Sabath of Illinois.

That was how the Taft housing bill containing the hopes of millions was buried.

Congressman Breaks Pledge

Runout Cox—One interesting gentleman who walked out at the last minute on the housing bill was Congressman Gene Cox of Georgia.

Cox is a key man on the Rules Committee, claims to have great influence. Before the vote came off, Cox sent a telegram to his home district promising to support the housing bill.

"You may assure all interested that I will do everything in my power to see that a rule is granted promptly for House consideration," Cox wired Hudson Malone, director of the Albany (Ga.) Housing Authority.

"The bill will have my strongest support with the hope that it will be passed before adjournment."

But just before the vote came, Cox got up and ducked out of the Rules Committee. News of his runout, of course, did not get back home to his home voters.

Woman Amazes Senators

FORTHRIGHT LADY—One of the few Truman appointees to be confirmed by the Senate during the last-minute rush of Congress was Miss Freida Hennock, the first lady ever appointed to the Federal Communications Commission. Miss Hennock was confirmed not only because of her ability but because of her amazing frankness.

Called before the Republican-dominated Interstate Commerce Committee, Miss Hennock, appointed as a Democrat, told the Senators:

"I'm against you and I always have been. I have done my best to collect money for Roosevelt and have probably taken a lot of good Republican money away from what you wanted to collect."

"Do you know anything about radio?" asked one Republican Senator.

"Only that I've raised a lot of money for radio programs for Roosevelt," replied Miss Hennock.

Senator Brewster of Maine wanted to know what Miss Hennock thought of Mary Martin of Maine, who last year was considered as a possible appointee to the FCC.

"I didn't know her," replied the lady Democrat from New York. "But I think that women haven't had nearly the recognition they deserved since they got suffrage. If they have brains and ability they should not be penalized merely because they wear a skirt."

The amazed Senators, taken back by Miss Hennock's frankness, asked many questions, all of them courteous and friendly. When the hearing was over, the prospective FCC commissioner told the committee:

"You're much too nice. I hope you don't confirm me and that you'll call me back here every week."

But they didn't, they confirmed her right away.

Note—The FCC is composed of a certain number of Democrats and a certain number of Republicans so that Miss Hennock's political affiliation as a Democrat was not held against her by the Republicans.

Education Blowup—The United States Office of Education, which for long years under Roosevelt was kept out of partisan politics, is now headed for a blowup.

E. B. Norton, deputy commissioner of education, has resigned in a huff over political censorship. He is sore at energetic Oscar Ewing, new Federal Security administrator, who is the over-all boss of the Office of Education.

Ewing was former vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee and is an all-out Truman man. Another resignation in the offing is that of Educational Commissioner John Studebaker himself.

THIS WEEK THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE

U. S. Department of State

AND ITS 21,000 PEOPLE WHO REPRESENT AMERICA IN WORLD-WIDE AFFAIRS

• The Department of State . . . is under the direction of the highest ranking Member of the Cabinet . . . the Secretary of State. Six Secretaries of State have been elected President . . . Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Van Buren, Buchanan . . . and many others have served our country with great distinction as statesmen and legislators.

• The Department of State . . . is the custodian of the Great Seal of the United States. Weighing twelve hundred pounds, the seal is affixed to proclamations of the President, ratifications of treaties, commissions of Cabinet Members, American diplomatic representatives and Foreign Service Officers, and certain other documents signed by the President.

• The Department of State . . . has its eyes and ears abroad in the person of Foreign Service Officers . . . who follow in the tradition of Benjamin Franklin, William Bolan and Arthur Lee, the first agents to serve the Continental Congress overseas.

• The Department of State . . . in addition to handling the foreign affairs of our nation, plays an important part in American domestic affairs. The Department has a share in the execution of immigration, narcotic and quarantine laws . . . gathers much of the financial, agricultural and commercial information upon which the Departments of the Treasury, Agriculture and Commerce depend . . . supervises and cooperates with representatives of other departments when on official business in foreign countries.

At home and abroad . . . in our relations with the countries of the world . . . and with international organizations . . . the United States is ably represented by the highly-trained and capable personnel of the Department of State. Here in Washington, six thousand people perform the duties delegated to the Department . . . while another fifteen thousand are spread throughout this country and throughout most of the nations of the world. Working abroad under the American Flag . . . they carry out the many-sided international activities of our great democracy . . . watching over our country's rights and the rights of American citizens traveling in foreign lands. The Department is steeped in the tradition of such eminent Secretaries of State as Thomas Jefferson, John Marshall, James Madison, Daniel Webster and many others . . . who served with great distinction at various times in our history. Engaged in handling our day-to-day international negotiations . . . promoting solidarity with the countries of the world . . . developing policies and programs for American participation in the United Nations and other international organizations . . . the contribution of the Department to our country's welfare and to our way of life is incalculable. The Hecht Company takes pleasure in rendering this salute to its thousands of friends in the Department of State . . . who represent our country and our people in the world-community of nations.
